GIRL TALK:

I'm a current subscriber to HUSTLER, and I'm writing to commend you on the April 1986 issue. It was fantastic.

The photo-spread Lola: The Family Jewel was one of the best ever in HUSTLER. She has great pussy lips!

—J. C.
Attleboro, Massachusetts

I have been buying HUSTLER over the years and generally find it pretty damn good. I think your December 1985 issue deserves some comment. Centerfold Michelle: Born in the Sun was excellent. Her breasts are stunning, firm with wonderful nipples. She appears not to have many inhibitions about showing off her beautiful body. The centerspread is excellent. It shows all of her better points to advantage. She has one of the prettiest pussies I have seen in a magazine, the kind it would be wonderful to go down on and have a feast.

I liked the spread on HUSTLER's hockey mascot, Bobbi: Body Check. She has great tits and doesn't mind showing her pussy. If she had worked the clit up a bit to where it showed, the spread shot would have been even better.

Cory: Come Blow Your Horn doesn't show me much. Her breasts aren't much, and she could stand a good pussy trim and a bit more real open beaver.

I love the Beaver Hunt section. You show some pretty ladies with nice bodies.

Keep up the good work and keep giving us photos of attractive young women.

—Name Withheld by Request

Okay, a new idea: A handsome, well-hung white man and a gorgeous black woman making love. I mean he eats her pussy and licks her ass and eats her. Be bold and do it. Black women taste better than white women!

Torrance, California

I've enjoyed HUSTLER Magazine immensely over the years. It's superior to Playboy and Penthouse. Keep it up.

However, nothing turns me off faster than some blond, hairless cunt. I'd like to see more dark-skinned, very hairy ladies. In real life my greatest enjoyment is to bury my face in all that dark fur and suck a woman's clit and cunt until she begs me to stop.

PISSED-OFF PRISONER:

You couldn't have picked a better weasel-lipped bitch for Asshole of the Month than that twat-mouth Norman Carlson (April 1986). He's the main reason riots, killings, rapes and some more shit go on in these prisons. In order for us to get medical treatment, we have to flood the tiers, set fires, fight the guards and still, if your head isn't hanging off or you're not bleeding to death, your chances are slim for help. Most of the time they give you aspirin. Then the only vocational training they've got is swinging a broom or mop. When enough is enough, that whore will turn these prisons into bloodbaths for both inmates and society. Keep those maggots in the light, Larry.

—R. W. M.

NATURAL SPLENDOR:

The cover on your March 1986 issue is great—good work, Clive McLean! And lots more of Sandy: Life's a Beach inside. She is so hot. Thanks for bringing her to us with a minimum of makeup and without bright nail polish.

—B. L.

FITS OF LAUGHTER:

I have been reading your magazine for many years now and have been completely satisfied with its contents. I consider it to be the No. 1 men's magazine there has ever been. Your written material and especially your pictorials are grade A in my opinion.

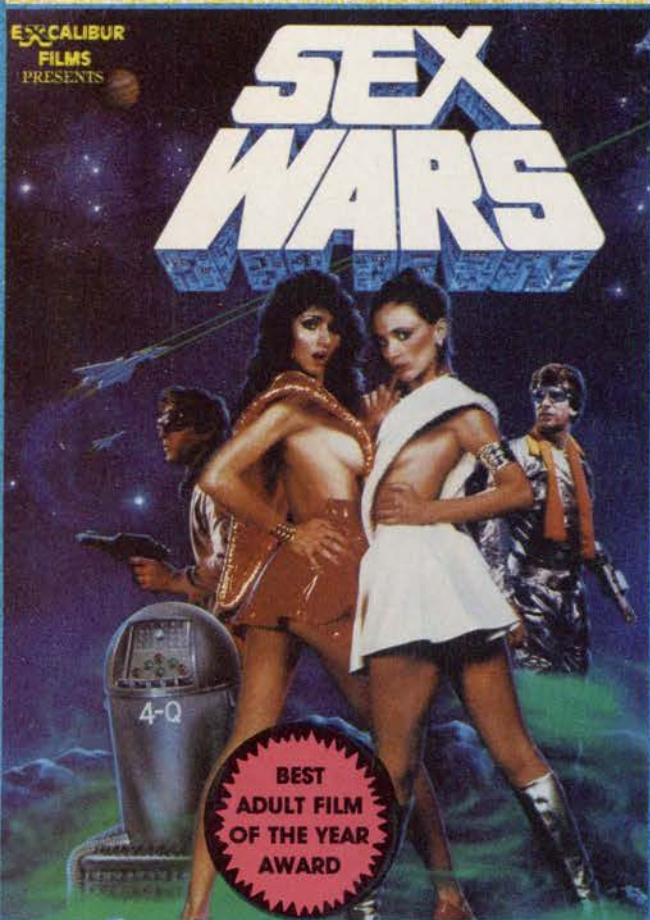

But lately your cartoons concerning epileptics have put a dent in my devotion as a faithful HUSTLER reader. My brother drowned a couple of years ago because he had an epileptic seizure while he was swimming. It's very disappointing to kick back with a HUSTLER and expect a few hours of enjoyable reading and come across one of these cartoons. I understand that your magazine is trying to express the comical aspect of epilepsy, but I just don't see one.

Sex Wars is an erotic take-off on the Space Saga films of late. It is the first adult film with major studio sci-fi flash and flesh. Reviewers have called this film the "BEST ADULT FILM EVER PRODUCED."

10,000 years have passed since an erotic war destroyed all known life on the planet Tyros, in the star system of Lesbos. Mysteriously, in recent years, spaceships have often vanished when navigating in that region of space. To quell spreading fears, the galactic federation sent out a cruiser class starcraft to investigate the strange occurrences around Tyros. It also vanished. A rescue mission is sent, manned by Brinker Duo, Mark Starkiller, Princess Layme, and of course, the robot 4-Q! What follows are some of the most erotic scenes ever filmed; to divulge any more would spoil the surprise ending. May the farce be with you!

Since we also feel that this is clearly the best adult film of all time, we guarantee that you will enjoy it completely! Period! If you disagree just send it back, no questions asked, and we will exchange it for the adult movie of your choice — all you pay is shipping.

—S. T. Henderson, North Carolina

I am a college student and a reader of men's magazines such as Penthouse and Playboy. Being tired of the same stuff, I tried your publication. I found the girls and the general quality of the magazine quite good, but your jokes are way too tasteless. Showing an aborted fetus dressed as a yuppie ("Yuppie Abortion," March 1986 Bits and Pieces), with the typical BMW keys, shows your lack of respect for human life and German engineering.

—Name Withheld by Request
Albany, New York

I've been reading your HUSTLER Humor page for some time, and I think it is very humorous. However, with everything to laugh about in the world that is truly funny, why do you insist on cracking jokes about starving people in Africa and other calamities? These jokes make me sick. I suppose next month you'll be trying to make us laugh over what happened to the space shuttle.

—A. M. Bath, Maine

HUSTLER is a sounding board for the humor of Americans in the streets, factories and offices. Our jokes are reader contributions of what they're telling their friends and co-workers (and we pay them $50 per joke).

IN 'TOON WITH TIMES:

I just want to say you have got the best magazine ever printed in the world. The best women, the best pink, informative articles, everything. But HUSTLER is lacking one important aspect that made it famous. Where the fuck is Honey?

—J. N. Lindenwold, New Jersey

As time passes, careers change, and Honey was no exception. Although she's retired, Humor and Cartoon Editors Dwaine and Susan Tinsley have several different kinds of cartoon and comic features in the works, all with the unique and unpredictable HUSTLER approach.

VOICES OF FREEDOM:

I read your magazine when I get a chance, and I have noticed your battle with censorship. Now people are talking about censoring television programs, complaining about sex and violence. I have never seen anything on TV that I thought should be censored. But today I came home from work to watch TV during my lunch break, and I saw something that should have been censored. I was treated to a special report from ABC News. Being in the Navy, I feared it was something about Libya, but it was worse!

HUSTLER JUNE

It was the tragedy of the space shuttle Challenger—not really the actual explosion, but the news coverage of it. Thanks to ABC, I got to see the mishap at least ten times during the noon hour. Showing videotape of the family of Christa McAuliffe viewing the takeoff and their expressions as they watched a loved one die was uncalled for. Watching people mourn on national television is sick, but they made a lot of bloodthirsty people out in TV land happy.

—William Wheeler
USS Kalamazoo

I'm really tired of all the sniveling assholes downgrading pornographic material and nude magazines. I remember when the new and only adult-book store opened in my hometown of Ligonier, Pennsylvania. I had to push through picketers staring half cross-eyed at me before I could get to the door. Most of the protesters were women and mothers, I suppose. Why can't they come to terms with reality? After all, they are the main attraction. Besides, no one is forcing them to enter the store and read any of the material.

Anyway, I don't think protesters are reading this, nor are they subscribing to HUSTLER like I do. But print this letter and encourage everyone who believes in nudity to let themselves be heard. Speak up to support nudity, not clam up! We have rights too!

—F. M.

SMALL REQUEST:

The subject of midgets came up with a friend. We have never seen a naked midget before. Would you do a layout of a female midget?

WANTS PRIVATE DICK:

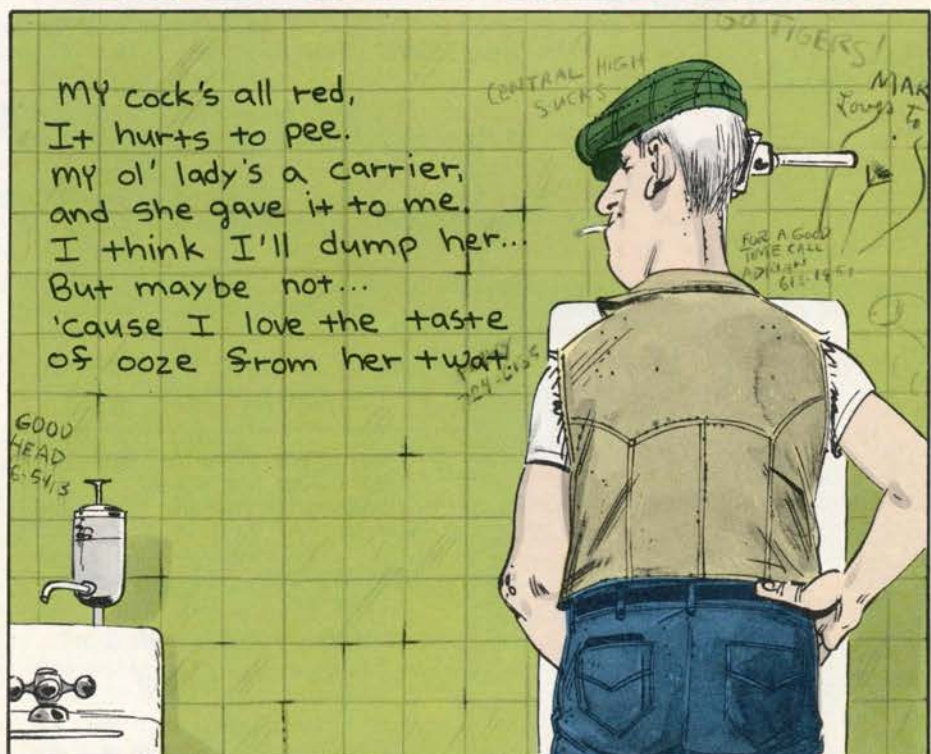

In your February 1986 issue I loved the Hawaii 12-0 feature. I'd like to run into detective Rock Hardy—he could put his big black hard tool in me anytime. Black dicks turn me on.

SCREWING SISTERS

I'd been having an affair with Sadie for about three months before I got the chance to meet her younger sister, Angela. Sadie and I met at a local disco and hit it off instantly. We were both in our mid-30s and had similar backgrounds. Sadie had a cute smile, a headful of dark-brown curls and knockout tits.

She took me home the night we met, ostensibly for a nightcap. But once inside her efficiency apartment, she announced she wanted to get more comfortable and promptly pulled out a see-through negligee. Then, to my great surprise, she proceeded to slip out of her skirt and blouse, standing before me clad only in her nightgown. She stepped forward, put her arms around me, and I thrust my probing hand up under the hem of her gown. When I put a couple of fingers inside her hot pussy, she was already wet.

With my stiff tool about to burst through my pants, I somehow managed to kick off my shoes as I unbuckled my belt and unzipped my fly with one hand while pushing Sadie's gown up around her chin with the other hand. Within seconds my trembling hands pulled off my shirt, pants and shorts, leaving my exposed hard-on pulsing hotly at the wet entrance of her gash. Spreading her pink pussy lips with the fingers of one hand, I grasped my throbbing rod in the other and wedged it into her fiery cunt.

Sadie exhaled with a combination of relief and desire as I started pumping my big organ into her. We went at it hot and heavy, our sweat-soaked bodies slamming against each other and making sucking sounds as we fucked frantically, hysterically. I waited until she screamed in orgasm, and then I fired a massive load of cum into her grateful twat. For the rest of that night we fucked in every position possible before finally falling asleep.

For the next three months we had dynamite sex at least twice during the week, while on weekends we usually stayed put in bed from early Friday evening until very early Monday morning fucking our brains out. Then one day Sadie told me that her younger sister, Angela, was coming to visit. I met Angela the following Friday evening. I'd thought Sadie was a looker, but her little sister almost caused me to keel over. I was absolutely steaming inside when I took her hand in greeting.

Since Sadie had to work the next morning, and I didn't, it was no surprise when I woke up alone. But forgetting my lover's guest, I got up stark naked and made myself a cup of coffee. I was greeted with a gasp from the scantily clad Angela sitting on the couch. Immobilized by the sight of her, I just stood there in the buff, staring at her hefty melons jiggling invitingly. Glancing down numbly, I saw that my cock was slowly but persistently rising. Apparently without realizing what she was doing, my lover's sister began running her fingers over the tips of her big, firm globes, then along her thighs.

I took three steps toward her, my erection wobbling threateningly as I walked, until she stood up. Almost involuntarily, my right hand slid up beneath her slip as my left hand pulled off the shoulder straps. Angela then placed her hands up near her ribcage. For one frightening moment I thought the gesture was one to push my hands away, but to my delight she was actually reaching to push the slip down until it fell around her ankles. Grasping one of her giant tits in each hand, I brought my open mouth down and closed it around an erect nipple, sucking the little protuberance until it hardened in my mouth.

Grabbing my ass with both palms, Angela pressed my naked, aroused body against her own, mashing my hard-on tightly against her flat tummy. Before either of us really knew what was happening, we were flat on the bed with my tortured erection rammed all the way into her tight cunt.

We screwed with a wild fury, pounding our pubic areas together violently as my mouth sucked and chewed on her nipples. Angela's surprisingly skillful hands roamed all over me. When at last she stuck a finger up my ass, I shot line after hot, sticky line of cum into her pussy.

Blushing, Angela reluctantly admitted that she'd wanted to fuck me the moment we'd met. This admission alone was enough to get me hard again, and we were soon fucking a second time when Sadie walked into the bedroom! At first she looked angry. Then, while Angela and I blurted out clumsy apologies, she undressed and crawled into bed with us. We spent the rest of the day inventing various threeway positions.

Angela has since found herself a good job and has moved into her own apartment, but she still visits her sister frequently, and the three of us shack up together. Sadie and Angela never touch each other during our sex acts, though they both enjoy watching the other fuck and suck me—but that, of course, is okay with me.

BIRTHDAY SURPRISE

Since I'm a freelance artist, much of my work takes me into the streets, parks and other sites of New York City. One day last summer, while working on an oil landscape, I noticed a woman observing me (or my work) for quite some time. She looked about 35, and I couldn't help but admire her well-kept body. Finally, she walked over to me while I was folding up my easel. She introduced herself as Stephanie and said that she was a divorcee and that she wanted me to paint a portrait of her daughter as a birthday present. I started to decline—I was already working on something else—but she wouldn't listen and gently pressed a folded C-note in my hand. She told me I could come up to her place now and do some preliminary sketches.

For some reason I soon found myself walking back to Stephanie's apartment, just a few blocks from the park. My admiration of her well-formed body grew as I noticed she was wearing little or nothing underneath her baggy jumpsuit.

While riding the elevator, I could see she was checking me out for more than just my artistic skills. My prong quickly stiffened at the thought of porking this pretty Polly, but when we reached her floor, she whispered that she hadn't been totally honest with me. She actually wanted me to fuck her daughter, Jennie, who was 20 years old that day. My eyes ran over Steph's beautiful bod once more, and I told her I'd do it.

Their apartment was very nicely decorated with some of the latest interior furnishings, and I could hear some light pop music coming from what must have been Jennie's room. Stephanie found a man's silk robe and a pair of slippers for me and said I could get undressed in the bathroom. Once I was done, she led me to Jennie's room. I knocked on the door, and a sweet voice told me to come in. Closing the door behind me, I saw Jennie, a beautiful girl with long black hair and tits that stood proudly at attention. She was wearing a pair of lacy black babydoll pajamas and was lying on the bed with the bottom half of her body covered. Jennie introduced herself and asked if I was going to just stand there until her next birthday.

We both began to giggle as I untied the belt to my bathrobe and exposed my rock-hard cock. When the robe fell to the floor, Jennie pulled down the sheets, revealing that her left leg had been amputated just above the knee. I was shocked! Jennie quickly pulled back the covers all the way to her neck, and she began to cry hysterically. "Mommy didn't tell you?" she asked, looking at me through watery eyes. "I was in a car accident last year." I didn't know what to say as she practically went into hysterics, sobbing and burying her head into the pillow.

I took her by her shoulders, and she stopped crying as I fumbled through her lacy top, caressing her magnificent breasts. Staring at me with moist green eyes, she let her tongue and fingers make their way down to my throbbing pole while I explored her soft muff and nibbled at the smooth flesh of her buttocks. This girl definitely wasn't a virgin! Her wet tongue darted out to make contact with the head of my cock, and it wasn't long before Jennie had my whole tool deep inside her mouth. Not wanting to explode too soon, I pushed her back and took off the bottoms of her pj's. As I gently pried her opening, she wrapped her arms around me, and the movement of her stump running along my right side seemed to enhance the coming waves of orgasm.

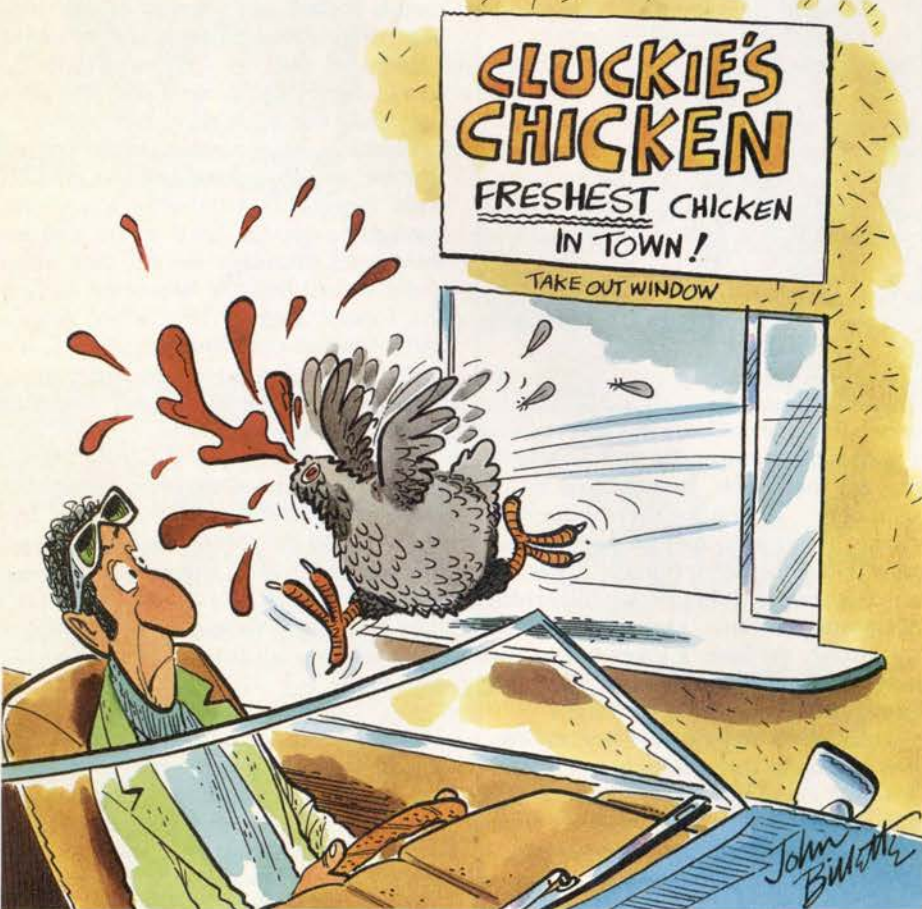

While she started to push my head down to her little cavern of delight, I felt something warm and wet engulf my cock from behind. Without stopping my oral expedition, I turned my head enough to see the naked Stephanie cupping my cock and balls in one hand and knocking on the door to my bunghole with the other.

I grabbed Jennie's shortened leg and started licking her inner thigh before voraciously attacking her inflamed clit. As Jennie was reaching her peak, Steph was bringing me off as well, with one finger in my asshole and her eager mouth sliding up and down my pulsating pipe. Jennie came first, while her mother massaged my cock head with what felt like her tonsils. Finally, my orgasm came in long, hot squirts down Stephanie's throat as she continued to suck down the very last of my juices.

Jennie and I lay in bed, wrapped in each other's arms, as Stephanie left the room. A minute later her mother returned with a birthday cake, and she and I sang a sexy rendition of "Happy Birthday" while Jennie blew out the candles. I'm a permanent fixture in their apartment now and the best therapist the crippled Jennie has had in a long time.

BITS and PIECES

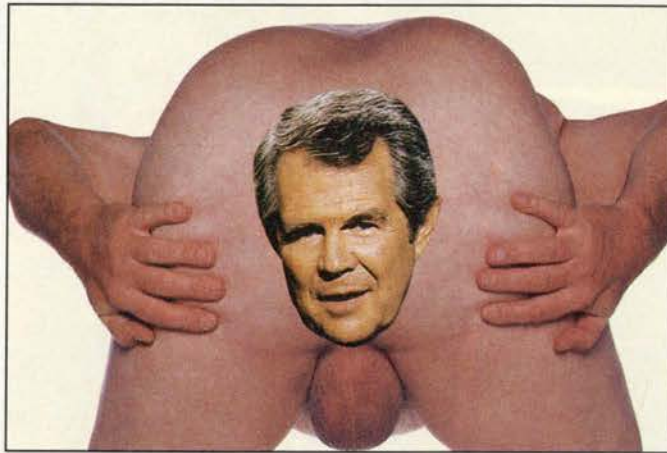

ASSHOLE OF THE MONTH

Most people would probably be offended if some smooth-talker offered to heal their ills from his TV-show easy chair. Well, faith healing might become the national health plan, and the Constitution might be reinterpreted according to Fundamentalist religious dogma if one television shill for God gets his way.

Of course, he'll try to pass it off as His way, which is why Marion Gordon (Pat) Robertson is our Asshole of the Month. He wants to run for President with the Lord's endorsement, obligating votes from the weak-willed followers of airwave messiahs.

Healing people over the air and equating spiritual health with financial prosperity help Robertson rake in more than $230 million annually from a following he claims numbers 30 million, although only 4 million call in each year. Actually, the higher number is how many people get the Christian Broadcasting Network, often carried as part of a broad-range package of TV services.

Pat Robertson

A university study shows that 27 million people see CBN for a few minutes each month, about how long it takes to figure out you're seeing a preach-cast that sounds like a political debate or social forum.

If Robertson can't keep the line between Church and State clear in his "calling" as a TV Holy Roller, how will he serve two masters in the White House? He claims it's no different than John Kennedy being President and a Catholic, but the pulpit politico conveniently overlooks that JFK was no priest—and no saint either.

The tongue-babblers berates the courts for not interpreting the Constitution according to his 'narrow-minded' concepts. "The people who wrote the Constitution believed that God was the final authority and that they were attempting to administer His law," Robertson claims, although nothing in the Constitution supports that. In fact, the First Amendment is interpreted as the opposite—a separation of man's law and God's law.

A Fundamentalist Constitution isn't Robertson's only political pronouncement preached from the pulpit as God's own fact. CBN's nightly newscast doesn't mask its right-wing Bible bias. Robertson shamelessly pounds the war drums to keep the faithful edgy. "Pacifism isn't biblical," says Robertson to excuse his operation's $2 million donation to Nicaraguan contras. According to our Bible, Jesus doesn't seem like the kind of guy you'd find encamped with right-wing death squads.

We guess you have to expect an asshole like Pat Robertson to interpret the Bible the way it suits his needs. His is the kind of upstanding moral character we hope is soon flushed from the sewers of politics.

It may be a sign that adult entertainment is getting tired, but you've no doubt noticed the vast array of "special interest" cassettes flooding the market these days. Big tits, back-door love, blacks, blacks and whites, bondage, lesbian and even, in some dark places, golden and brown showers—you can just about find it all. Almost. There are a few titles nobody's gotten around to producing. Nobody, that is, except the people at Vicious Video Inc., a new company devoted to the visual exploration of the most taboo and tasteless topics imaginable. Fear of Flying

With last year being the worst in aviation history as far as in-air tragedy goes, airlines are modifying their on-board protection procedures. Not only are jets being checked out with a fine-tooth wrench before they're allowed in the sky, but stewardesses aren't taking any chances either. These hostesses of the skies are sick and tired of being torch fodder, and they've decided to stamp their little feet and do something about it. Here we see the latest in bomb-resistant and fire-proof, highly carcinogenic asbestos wear just off the Rockwell designer racks. The girls love it, but flirtatious male passengers aren't too happy. Says one frequent but frustrated flyer: "I used to pinch every set of buns in the sky. Now you need a friggin' garden shears to get the bitch to turn around."

Pillow Talk

GREAT MOMENTS WITH RON AND NANCY

The President and Mrs. Reagan react to a reporter's question: "What are the chances of a balanced budget before November 1988?"

Strolling Through the Kaddafi Patch

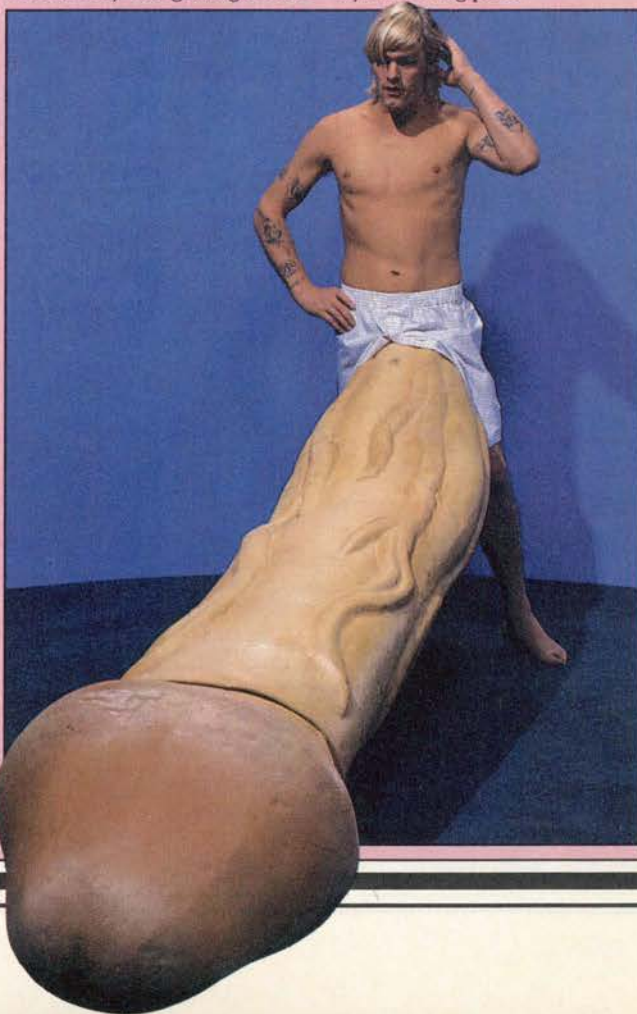

With the current economic and political riff between our two nations, Libyans and Americans are missing out on some valuable commerce. One product in particular that's becoming more and more difficult for American retailers to import are the popular Kaddafi Patch Kids, a new line of terrorist toys designed by an Illinois manufacturer living in Libya. The lovable dolls are not only a rage among U.S. citizens visiting Muammar's hometown, they're also a hit with Libyan tykes. Each Kaddafi Patch Kid comes with his own birth and death certificates, not to mention enough live ammunition to blow up a small village.

The Gland Illusion

Andy "The Tool" Turner used to be a maintenance engineer at the San Onofre nuclear-power plant in Southern California. He isn't anymore. One afternoon, Andy was getting a little on-the-job nookie from a receptionist behind the uranium-238 pile. A leak sprung while Andy had his pants down, and this is the result. The receptionist? Her pussy's now the company swimming pool.

Eyes Glued to the Set

Parents, listen up! The kids of America are in big trouble! What with cable, satellite, network and public-access bombarding their televisions, our tots are becoming thoroughly hypnotized by the tube. If something doesn't happen soon to alter the continuing trend of juvenile cathode fixation, we may never be able to communicate with our youngsters again . . . not that we could before.

Whoopi Cushion

It inevitably happens with a Steven Spielberg picture. You remember the E.T. dolls, the Indiana Jones paraphernalia, etc.? Mr. S is as much a merchandising mogul as a movie mogul. You would have thought, however, that this once—with his first serious cinematic stab at personal drama—the promotional deluge might be avoided. No such luck, folks.

Color Purple star Whoopi Goldberg has already found her image emblazoned on the first of what should be an endless line of party gags. The Whoopi Goldberg Cushion, we must say, is quite an amusing number. When you sit on it, it belches Whoopi's famous word from the film, "Yessir," in authentic Negro dialect. Whether you're black, white or purple, this one's a collector's item.

Write On

New York, New York—At last they're seeing the light. Author Gay Talese, discussing censorship at the PEN International Congress for writers, described pornography as the vanguard of literature. Explaining that, by softening up people's standards, so-called pornographers perform a valuable service for other writers. Talese went on to describe Screw's Al Goldstein and our own Larry Flynt as "the kamikaze pilots of the literary world." Thanks, Gay, Honor Thy Father was pretty good too.

A Kiss Is Still a Kiss

Harrison, Michigan—Think twice the next time you're French kissing—communicable diseases aren't all you have to fear. Trena Roland, 23, has been charged with assault with intent to maim after biting off an inch and a half of 20-year-old Scott Davis's tongue, apparently during a moment of really unbridled passion. Perhaps they'd just seen Midnight Express together. At any rate, Roland could face up to ten years in prison if she is convicted.

A Dog's Life

Pacific Palisades, California—It had to happen. Canine Cryobank Inc. is the first sperm bank for dogs. Mutts are welcome as well as show dogs, as long as the owners can cough up the initial $185, along with the annual $75 sperm-storage fee. A small price to assure that your pup's lineage is preserved. Founder Carol Bardwick notes that the dogs love it: "Once they know where they're going, they're very enthusiastic."

The Price Is Ripe

Karlsruhe, West Germany—Mothers who tell their little girls that virginity is priceless now have an argument on their hands. A West German court has set a price tag on 19-year-old Carol Winter's cherry. They are fining a young soldier $630 for deflowering the girl and then breaking off their engagement. It's a sellers' market out there.

Taunton, England—The play Steaming, which is set in a steam bath, takes audience participation to new levels. In a special section of the theater, audience members are encouraged to disrobe along with the cast. Reception has been chilly. For one thing, the Brew-house Theatre has had to supply special seatcovers for those worried about contracting AIDS from previous crowds.

Wait 'Til Your Mothers Get Home

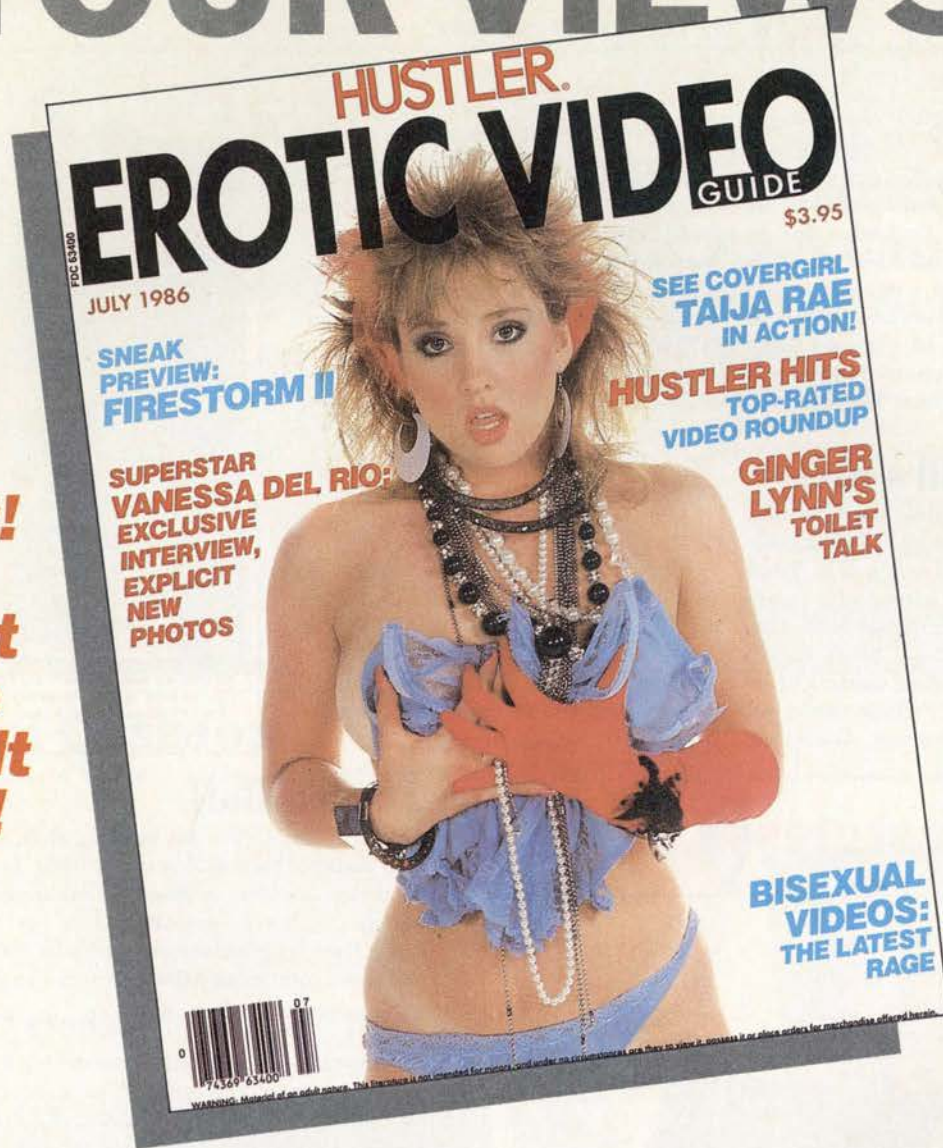

Vancouver, Canada—Penny Anderson has been waging an unusual battle to get child-support payments from her estranged husband. The twist is that her husband, Arlene Luoma, is also a woman. The two apparently lived as husband and wife for ten years in the traditional fashion with Luoma out working while Anderson stayed home and took care of their two daughters. Sort of hard to say who wore the pants in this family, but it was Anderson's job to have the babies by artificial insemination.

X-RATED FILMS, FUCK TAPES AND MORE

X-RATED FILMS

Edited by Doug Oliver

Millions of adults watch X-rated movies; yet most publications have constantly ignored the obvious need to inform the public as to which films are ripoffs and which ones aren't. HUSTLER's reviews of hard-core erotic films have long been regarded as the yardstick of the industry. We take this function seriously, and we'll continue to keep you abreast of the latest adult-film releases, and also do our best to spur porn producers on to even better productions.

The Voyeur

 Three-Quarters Erect. Produced and directed by Chuck Vincent; written by Chuck Vincent and John Blaise; starring Sheri St. Clair, Robert Bullock, Taija Rae, George Payne, Tish Ambrose, Michael Knight, Sharon Kane, Sarah Bernard, Anthony Casino and Jack Wrangler. Running time: 80 minutes.

The Voyeur is one of those rare

'The Voyeur' focuses on Sheri St. Clair's flamboyant sexual displays.

X-rated movies that manage to integrate sex and story perfectly. Of course, given its subject, a filmmaker would have to be stupefyingly inept not to be able to work sex into it somehow. Nevertheless, this puzzling and intriguing film is a fascinating portrait of a man being manipulated by unknown persons for unknown reasons.

The man (Robert Bullock in a truly remarkable performance) is hired by lawyer Jack Wrangler to tail a mysterious woman (Sheri St. Clair) and record as much of her secret life as he can on videotape. Bullock is suspicious of the job and its easy money, but his wife (Taija Rae) convinces him to accept it. Like a kid with a new toy, Bullock plays around with his new video equipment, talking Rae into fucking him while he photographs them in action. This gives us an arousing simultaneous view of them screwing live and on TV.

Renting a seedy hotel room that looks across at St. Clair's luxury apartment, Bullock sets up his camera. Among the scenes he tapes are St. Clair masturbating on her bed while her chauffeur looks on, elaborate party preparations carried out by a hired maid and butler (Tish Ambrose and Michael Knight) who learn that they are the guests when St. Clair lures them into a steamy threeway with the promise of extra wages, and a jizz-jolting pound-and-thrust between St. Clair and Anthony Casino, a sex-starved convict she's somehow sprung for the evening.

All this illicit peeping—and the shocking realization that St. Clair is aware of the camera—finally gets to Bullock. He's become a voyeur and stoops so low as to try to undress his sleeping wife so he can beat off to her nakedness while peering at her through the camera. When she wakes up, furious, she calls him a pervert and throws him out. Bullock hits the bottle—and bottom—when he ends up in a drunken sexual encounter with sadistic bitch cop Sharon Kane and her nightstick.

The capper comes when someone ransacks his apartment and steals the cassettes of St. Clair, but leaves one for him: a tape of him jerking off in St. Clair's living room, made when he had broken in to snoop around. There are more strands to the sticky web that Bullock is caught in, but to reveal everything would weaken the punch of the ending.

Acting and script are superb, and the sex, though specialized—we see nearly all the action through a peeping Tom's eyes—is bone-building. For prying eyes this is a must-see. —D. O.

Sex Wars

Half Erect. Produced and directed by Bob Vosse; written by Arthur King; starring Laurie Smith, Paul Thomas, Robin Cannes, Richard Pacheco, Gail Sterling, Billy Dee, Mai Lin, Mariko, Rick Savage, De Ja Vou, Jon Martin and Mike Horner. Running time: 86 minutes.

This Star Wars takeoff features excellent performances by Paul Thomas and Richard Pacheco, some interesting special and visual effects and some remarkable costumes and makeup. There's no doubt that the producers of Sex Wars did the best they could to make an entertaining fuck film but, though the flick does contain some highly entertaining moments and is technically solid, there are plot and pacing problems and—the killer—most of the sex is merely lukewarm.

In the fairly predictable story Princess Layme (Robin Cannes) meets Brinker Duo and Mark Starkiller (Thomas and Pacheco) in Lil's Last Chance Space Saloon on the planet Pluto. At Lil's we're tortured by a costly, pointless attempt to render a porn version of the famous Star Wars bar scene: The place is littered with spacelings in outlandish costumes and makeup who behave like ninnies. Lil's also has a live sex show, which we're unable to get into because of the frequent cutting away to our trio's conversation.

Cannes tries to sign up Thomas and Pacheco to help her search for her sister, Princess Orgasma (Laurie Smith), on the sinister planet Tyros. The guys say no dice, but Cannes gets them sloshed on "real French brandy," then fucks and shanghai's them.

Once on Tyros the plot gets really muddy. Needless to say, they're captured, but manage to escape with Smith—and a few others necessary for the spaceship orgy that follows—in tow. Because the producers wanted to get their money's worth out of the costumes and makeup, the final scene takes place at Lil's—no matter that it means bludgeoning the viewer for a second time with the overly drawn-out, inane antics of a crowd of extras who have obviously been told to "have a good time" for the camera.

There are a commendable number of sex scenes—cocksucking is particularly emphasized—but only two stand out. One is a strange and beautiful threeway involving Mai Lin, Mariko and Thomas. The girls' faces and bodies are painted white, and their nipples, eyelids, lips and fingernails are bright red. The effect is striking, and the scene is extremely sensual. In the other, Cannes and Thomas enjoy a hearty screw while Pacheco watches. After Thomas comes, Pacheco climbs on for seconds, shooting almost immediately and coating Cannes with a good squirt of cum.

Sex Wars is an amusing film with a few erotic highlights, but not quite enough to keep that old space needle stiff. —D. O.

Gettin' Ready

Half Erect. Produced by Jim Reynolds; written by Will Kelly; directed by Jerome Bronson; starring Ali Moore, Jacqueline Lorians, Angel West, Mindy Rae, Randy West, Peter North, Tony Martino, Jessica Wyld, Marc Wallace, Steve Drake, Tracey Adams, Shone Taylor, Kathlyn Moore and Eric Edwards. Running time: 90 minutes.

This laid-back comedy satirizes the ridiculous lifestyles of the bitchin' aimless—those superficial Beverly Hills/San Fernando Valley-types whose money insulates them from reality—and serves up a raincoater's portion of sex in the process.

The story is about a unique finishing school, Campo Beverly Hills, that pre-debutante "virgins" are sent to for a weekend of instruction in the fine arts of sex. The clever, though thin, script effectively ties the nine sex scenes together, but overall Gettin' Ready is something of a letdown because the film's premise isn't adequately exploited. We get a tame classroom demonstration and a humorous scene in which first-time sex counselor Peter North gets a lesson in fucking from Ali Moore—and that's it. The rest of the sex is extracurricular. Gettin' Ready would have been a stronger—and possibly hotter—film if Campo's program had been more fully explored. Another weakness is the lack of urgency in most of the sex: The fucking and sucking is almost as laid-back as the Southern California lifestyle. And two potentially hot scenes—the Jacqueline Lorians/North "audition" and the Mindy Rae/Steve Drake boff don't quite come off because the camera rarely captures the meat of the action.

On the plus side: Raunch fans will go nuts over the poolside romp between Jessica Wyld and Randy West. It begins with a great touch—Wyld sniffing the towel West's been lying on—and ends with a great blowjob. Also, Moore's taking on Marc Wallice in the backseat of a limo—and herself in a soapy bath—are not to be missed. And the soft-focus fantasy fuck between Tony Martino and jailbait-looking Angel West, though cum-less, will undoubtedly appeal to the tender loving dreamy-sex set.

The real appeal of this film is its beguiling star, Ali Moore. Her youthful beauty, succulent body and ability to deliver lines make her a prime contender for porn's big leagues. Moore's presence is the main reason to give Gettin' Ready the once over. —D. O.

A Coming of Angels—The Sequel

Half Erect. Produced by Del Rey Films; written by T. J. Lambert; directed by Joe and Guido Williams; starring Annette Haven, Ginger Lynn, Kelly

Porn cupcake Ali Moore prepares for her final exam in 'Gettin' Ready.'

Nichols, Jamie Gillis, Herschel Savage, Eric Edwards, Colleen Brennan, Paul Thomas, Jill Ferrar and Mike Horner. Running time: 85 minutes.

Though the cast list reads like a veritable Who's Who in Porn, A Coming of Angels—The Sequel ranks as a major disappointment. The film is routine and predictable, and is inferior to the original in almost every department. Except for the scenes involving Ginger Lynn and Kelly Nichols, the sex is relatively tame. (Annette Haven's scene with Jamie Gillis simmers when it should sizzle. Ditto a doggy-style fuck she gets from Paul Thomas at film's end.)

Here's what happens: Senator's daughter Jill Ferrar has been kidnapped; so her father (Gillis) consults Haven, the brains behind the Angels Organization, a female-detective agency whose girls aren't afraid to give an occasional fuck or suck in order to get a little info. Haven agrees to take the case, and Gillis shows his appreciation by pumping her pussy right on the desk. A shot of jizz on her stomach, and the deal is sealed.

It turns out, however, that Ferrar is anything but an unwilling abductee. She's having a whale of a time munching "captor" Herschel Savage's cock. In truth, they're in cahoots to bilk Dad of some major coin.

Lynn investigates Eric Edwards, Gillis's campaign manager. He's more than a little reluctant to cooperate, but Ginger doesn't care; she just wants to get fucked. Edwards and co-worker Mike Horner oblige by filling the blond beauty at both ends.

Back at the office, Lynn and Nichols share that special closeness that some colleagues have. They go at each other on the office sofa with the reckless abandon of two bitches in heat. Using a spiked heel to rub on Ginger's clit, Kelly finger-bangs her into the stratosphere. It's then Kelly's turn to reap the pleasure of Ginger's hot tongue on her snatch. Lynn works her into such a sweat that Nichols screams out, "I could've had you instead of a Quarter Pounder!" So much for ad-libbing. The scam is finally uncovered by the Angels, and all ends well with tightwad Gillis giving his daughter some cash.

Considering all the top talent onscreen, Coming should really deliver more heat than it does. What makes this sequel worth watching are Lynn and Nichols (who replace Abigail Clayton and Leslie Bovee, stars of the original). Every scene these two are in positively crackles. Whether it's their hot lesbo cuntlapping, a double-team on Paul Thomas or Ginger's twin pole-poking by Edwards and Horner, these girls far outshine the rest of the bland material.

—Sam Lowry

PORNPOURRI

Edited by Doug Oliver

Adult entertainment has diversified. Videotapes produced exclusively for home viewing are now being manufactured and can be purchased at this country's nearly 15,000 video stores or through scores of mail-order companies. To help you sort out the best from the rest, HUSTLER provides these capsule reviews of the newest X-rated home videos, as well as the latest happenings in the world of erotic entertainment.

Caught in the Middle

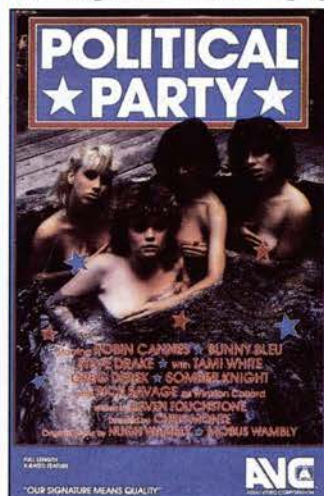

(Cinderella Distributors) There's plenty of super-charged pussy eating, cocksucking and energetic fucking in this tale of suburban youngsters in heat—and there's even a story to go with the near constant carnality. Mom and Pop (Tracey Adams and Rick Savage) get the balls rolling with a tender yet torrid breakfast bed-warmer. These two pros successfully convince us they're in love and that they love to fuck. Meanwhile, son Chip (Peter North) and college coed Cyndee (Kari Foxx) are making plans for a wild party in his parents' absence. In previewing the upcoming festivities, Foxx gets her face stuffed full of North's big bone, then the two knock off a peter-pleasing piece. After the folks split, the dolls (Tiffany Blake, Tami Lee Curtis and Gail Force) and the guys (Marc Wallace and Ted Williams) arrive for a poolside bar-b-screw that's hot enough to roast marshmallows over. After another Foxx/North encounter that culminates in geysers of sperm-icing coating Foxx's cupcake face, the party moves indoors for some heavy sheet-action, highlighted by a sweat-soaked Blake/Wallace romp that includes a brief butt-bang. With the exception of newcomer Ted Williams—whose sex scenes with Blake and Curtis aren't exactly effortless—everyone has more fun than you can shake your wick at. For couples and singles, Caught in the Middle is a good place to be. —Bill Butler

Political Party

foursome enjoying the solitude of a mountain cabin—and one another. The action starts immediately as Cannes and Derek 69 and then fuck. After pounding Cannes's cunt, Derek plows her marvelous mounds, spraying jizz on her face. In another room Drake is busy drilling Tami White's plump pussy. The next day, while the guys are away, the pussies play. Cannes and White have a lunch of buffet beaver, taking turns munching each other's muff. Meanwhile the plot is thickening: A famous politico (Rick Savage) and two young beauties (Bunny Bleu and Sombre Knight) on the lam from the police and the press seek asylum at the mountain hideaway. With the cast in place the pace quickens, and several rod-raising scenes follow. Savage and his assistants have a hot, heavy and hard threeway. Later, Bleu fucks and double sucks Derek and Drake while Savage gets his cock sucked by Cannes and White. In a standout scene Cannes does a three-alarm solo masturbation that really sizzles. The tape climaxes with a complete cast clusterfuck that will make you wish all political parties were this much fun. —B. B.

Amber's Desires

(Caballero Home Video) When you have amorous Amber Lynn as the focus of any sexvid, you've got a pretty good foundation for formidable fuck fare. In Amber's Desires the luscious Lynn plays a young woman tormented because she can't reach orgasm. Attempting to discover the root of her problem, her psychiatrist (Jerry Butler) uses hypnosis to draw out Lynn's most erotic dreams and past real-life sexual experiences. As it turns out, however, Amber's only problem is that she hasn't fucked her psychiatrist and, when she finally does, she's cured. Cheap way out, granted, but what did you expect, Lady Chatterley's Lover? Amber—during her fantasies—has a couple of heated encounters. In one, she's a Colonial-era schoolteacher who gets boned by a baby-faced farmhand (Tom Byron). In another, Kevin James and Herschel Savage deal their devilish dicks to a submissive Lynn in a nightmare-in-hell sequence. The big problem with Amber's Desires is that the sex scenes are impatient and hurried. In one lesbian flashback in a women's prison, Lynn barely has time to moisten her thighs before the scene is unmercifully cut. There is also something inherently wrong with Amber Lynn in submissive roles. She's a fuck-happy firecracker who excels when she's got her partner by the short-hairs. Bitchiness and ball-busting boldness are her strong suits. Too many times in this video she's a softy. Angel may be good for the puff roles, but Amber needs her men on their knees. By no means a bad effort, Amber's Desires—despite its maladies—does star Amber Lynn. That alone makes it worth a peek.

—H. A. Wallace

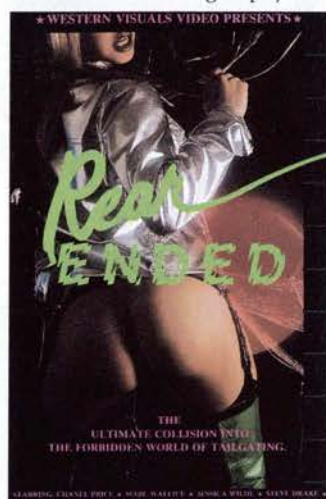

Rear Ended

(Western Visuals) This no-frills, generic butt-fuck flick may be glamorous, but it features plenty of big tits. The action begins with an offcamera car crash that brings Jessica Wylde in to use the 'Sperminator': Rachel Ashley and Jerry Butler work up a lather, but not much else.

phone at a grimy house full of anally fixated fanatics. From here on out the murky tape is sleaze-drenched in jug-hung sluts playing asshole buddy with one another and their male pals. Amazonian Chanel Price, who sounds more like a drag queen than any other woman in porn, ends up with the most ass duty—both giving and receiving. She finishes the tape sounding like a transsexual in childbirth while being double-penetrated by Francois and Marc Wallace. Though all the sex leads to chocolate pudding-stirring, Jessica Wylde working her sphincters down Steve Drake's candy bar and Wallace taking on Price's big buns are two standouts. Rear Ended is less than long on physical beauty, but the raunch is constant, and the camera is usually pointed where it should be—at the rearend. —Allan MacDonell

The Sperminator

(Red Light Video) Honey Wilder runs a secluded sex clinic for rich wienies and snatches in this 77-minute snooze-along sexvid. Among her patients are a yuppie Casanova (Jerry Butler) looking for true love, an insecure and timid wench (Rachel Ashley), a wealthy construction mogul (Joey Silvera) and the wife he takes for granted (Karen Summer). Wilder is assisted by two therapists: lusty, lovely Crystal Breeze and long-winded George Payne. Once the characters and situations are established and the action begins, it's a slow and labored grind. After the players start playing, things get reasonably hot, but so much time's wasted talking the patients through their "problems" that insomniac viewers may find themselves cured—and snoring. Butler boffs Wilder, Ashley and Breeze make with the mutual muff-munch, Payne and Summer lick and lay, Ashley and Butler suck, eat and jerk each other off (almost off in Butler's case—he can't seem to bust his nut, no matter how hard Rachel throttles his wang), and Silvera slips Summer his schlong in the tape's terminal tryst. Sorry, guys, a great title isn't enough. If this tape had even a fraction of the action and excitement of the film its title plays on, it might have made the cut. As it is, The Sperminator is almost its own terminator. —B. B.

Chastity Johnson

(Adult Video Corporation) This is one of those rare instances where the story idea is actually worthy of more than a standard low-budget production. Chastity (youthful newcomer Nikki Charm) has an after-school job posing nude for a photographer (John Holmes). She loves the work, and she loves the money, but she prudently keeps her activities secret from her guardian aunt, Dina (Tracey Adams). The plot thickens when we find out that Aunt Dina is not only totally aware of Chastity's profession, she had a hand in turning the photographer on to her naughty niece and expects a piece of the action when the big bucks come rolling in from photo sales. Chastity's boyfriend (Shone Taylor) stumbles upon the truth and alerts Chas who, being 18 and spunky, cuts her evil aunt right out of the picture. Charm is an absolute treasure, and her three-way with Jesse Adam and Buck Adams is a bone-stroker's dream. (Should this be retitled the Adams Family?) For the record there's a brief butt-fuck of Summer Rose by Taylor, but the main attraction for many will probably be Holmes who, after a lengthy workout, leaves smiling Tamara Longley with a faceful of glistening goo. —Lee Roberti

'Lifestyles': Chanel Price knows how to warm up for the black and famous.

Lifestyles of the Black and Famous

(Wet Video) This spoof of the popular TV series dispels the notion that black men won't eat pussy. They eat white pussy. Black and Famous examines all the things a modern black-and-beautiful brother can acquire once he gets over and has his "fuck you" money. We're not talkin' Mercedes and Rolls-Royce; we're talkin' white women. Hosts Chrystal Evans (formerly known as Shannon) and suave Ernie Tarzan visit three rich black dudes, each of whom has a personal blond bitch. This is a perfect opportunity for those who like to see less-than-gorgeous white bimbos get the soul-shaft in spades. Particularly unforgettable is sex slave Myriah. This Aryan submissive wears a chain connecting the pins through her nipples, a metal stud in her nose and three good-size rings piercing the lips of her shaved cunt—which looks stunning wrapped around an ebony pole. At one point the simulated broadcast is interrupted for a commercial advertising Licorice Twists, another Jim Travis-directed video, which is a cost-effective way to squeeze in a huge load of Afro cum on the face of black man's burden Ingrid Elliott (who fucks with a new hair color in this pornvid under the name of Penny Morgan). Aside from being fast-moving, funny and well-shot—though it has some editing kinks—Lifestyles is a definite public service. Somebody's got to fuck these white sluts... and Travis had the balls to videotape it. —A. M.

It's Incredible!

(Electric Hollywood) Unlike other would-be comic porn cassettes that can't raise a chuckle or a hard-on, It's Incredible! is that rare beast that's fuck-filled and funny at the same time. Shanna McCullough and Rick Savage deliver wacky performances as Erma and Corwin Cluff, a pair of pitiful suburban nerds whose lives are changed by an outrageous television show that presents various "incredible" sex acts. In the "G-spot orgasm" scene, super-hot Nina Hartley and the superb Sondra Stillman partake of each other's pussy with abandon. After some truly inspiring tongue- and finger-diddling, and some acrobatic 69-ing, Hartley flips Stillman's switch, and a gusher of gash-goo explodes from sultry Sondra's snatch. In another noteworthy scene, stewardess Lili Marlene takes on five studs. After sucking each cock, she has all of her available holes and hands filled, and the airborne romp ends in a shower of semen. The nerds, turned-on by all the action, are soon hard at it themselves. When the program ends, they're joined by live-in "Czechoslovakian" exchange students Rene Lovins and Tom Byron for still more fucking and sucking. Fast, funny and sex-stuffed, It's Incredible! lives up to its name. —B. B.

Suze's Centerfolds Collection 9

(Vidco) This tape is loaded with goodies. First, we get to see the eccentric Suze beaver-snapping behind the scenes at actual still photo-shoots. The action is not only exciting, it's interesting too—watching this talented twat-tamer in her element with an assortment of pretty bimbettes. Second, we're treated to four short loops culled from the enormous catalog of Suze's porn-film work. Two of the reels (shot on film) are exceptional: "The Master and the Maid," featuring a very young Laurie Smith, and "Chauffeur's Lady," in which the exquisite and little-seen Kaviar gets a mouth and cunt full of

Craig Roberts. And third, Suze, the most gracious of hostesses, reviews clips from the first eight releases of the Suze's Centerfolds videotape collection. Here we get a glimpse of the first-ever sex-scene appearance of the now-legendary dick-diddler Ginger

Lynn. While Collection 9 does come off as a sort of Suze Randall video biography, the images and sex are so fast-paced (the editing is excellent too) that the 60-minute vid absolutely flies by. Well done, Ms. Randall!

THE END OF IMPOTENCE

MODERN PENILE IMPLANTS

It's a miracle!" proclaimed the well-built executive in his late-50s. "We made love last night, and for the first time I had no fear of losing it." The man was telling me about his first lovemaking session after receiving a penile implant.

"At one point I was able to stop moving and just held it like that—

Like many men, the executive thought there was nothing he could do about his fading erectile ability.

looking into her eyes. We felt so close at that moment. When we started again, I was able to keep going and going, all the way to her orgasm and beyond. It's been ten years since I was able to do that!"

When the executive first came to see me, he was suffering from one of the most devastating handicaps that can hit a male's psyche—impotence. Men are reluctant to talk about this problem, but estimates hold that as many as 10 million males in this country are impotent. Many more are struggling along with only partial functioning.

The definition of impotence is simple: Not being able to maintain a firm erection long enough to have satisfactory sexual intercourse. Sexual feeling, ejaculatory power or fertility are not affected. It has been well documented that the pleasure of sexuality continues throughout life for both men and women. Only a man's erectile ability is lost as time passes or physical problems develop.

In the past ten years safe and effective penile implants have been developed that completely solve erection problems—should conventional treatment fail.

If the problem were in any area less painfully intimate, the development of this implant would be making headlines. We are the first generation in mankind's history to effectively solve this age-old problem. The media carries lots of stories about implants that restore the ability to walk, maintain a heart or correct physical appearance, but problems with erections are not for general publication.

Any problem this painful and this epidemic is bound to be a subject of much concern. But like so many anxiety-laden subjects, it tends to surface only in the form of jokes and humor. For instance, this classic is attributed to Mae West: "Honey, it's like trying to push a car uphill . . . with a rope!" Says a contemporary comedian (who claims he doesn't get much respect), "My wife hasn't given up on me. Oh, no. She uses me to time eggs." In the boardroom they have a saying: "When the mind makes a contract the body can't fill, you're over the hill, you're over the hill!"

Like so many men, the executive I mentioned had thought there was nothing he could do about his fading erectile ability, accepting it as an inevitable change. In our competitive society a man is supposed to be strong, firm and reliable. When his penis turns out to be none of these, it can be a crippling blow to his ego. What is worse, his trust in himself is completely undermined. That can have a disastrous effect on his job performance and his role as a parent, to say nothing of his marital relationship.

By the time the exec came to see me, he had been through several traumatic experiences. His story is typical of men with this problem: "I guess it really started back in my marriage, but there was no way I could admit it at the time. The plain fact was that we had ways of 'getting off,' but intercourse was just not happening much anymore. When we divorced, it was for a lot of reasons, but the sex thing was there too. I guess I felt at my age there was nothing much I could do about it. Maybe a new partner."

Only after painfully embarrassing, discouraging experiences did he decide to seek help: "I had an idea that there might be problems when I started dating other women, but I was hoping the stimulation of a new partner would take care of it. Then I met Charlotte at the health club. She was great, lots of fun and very outgoing. We got along fine. One night she asked me back to her place, and we both knew it was going to happen.

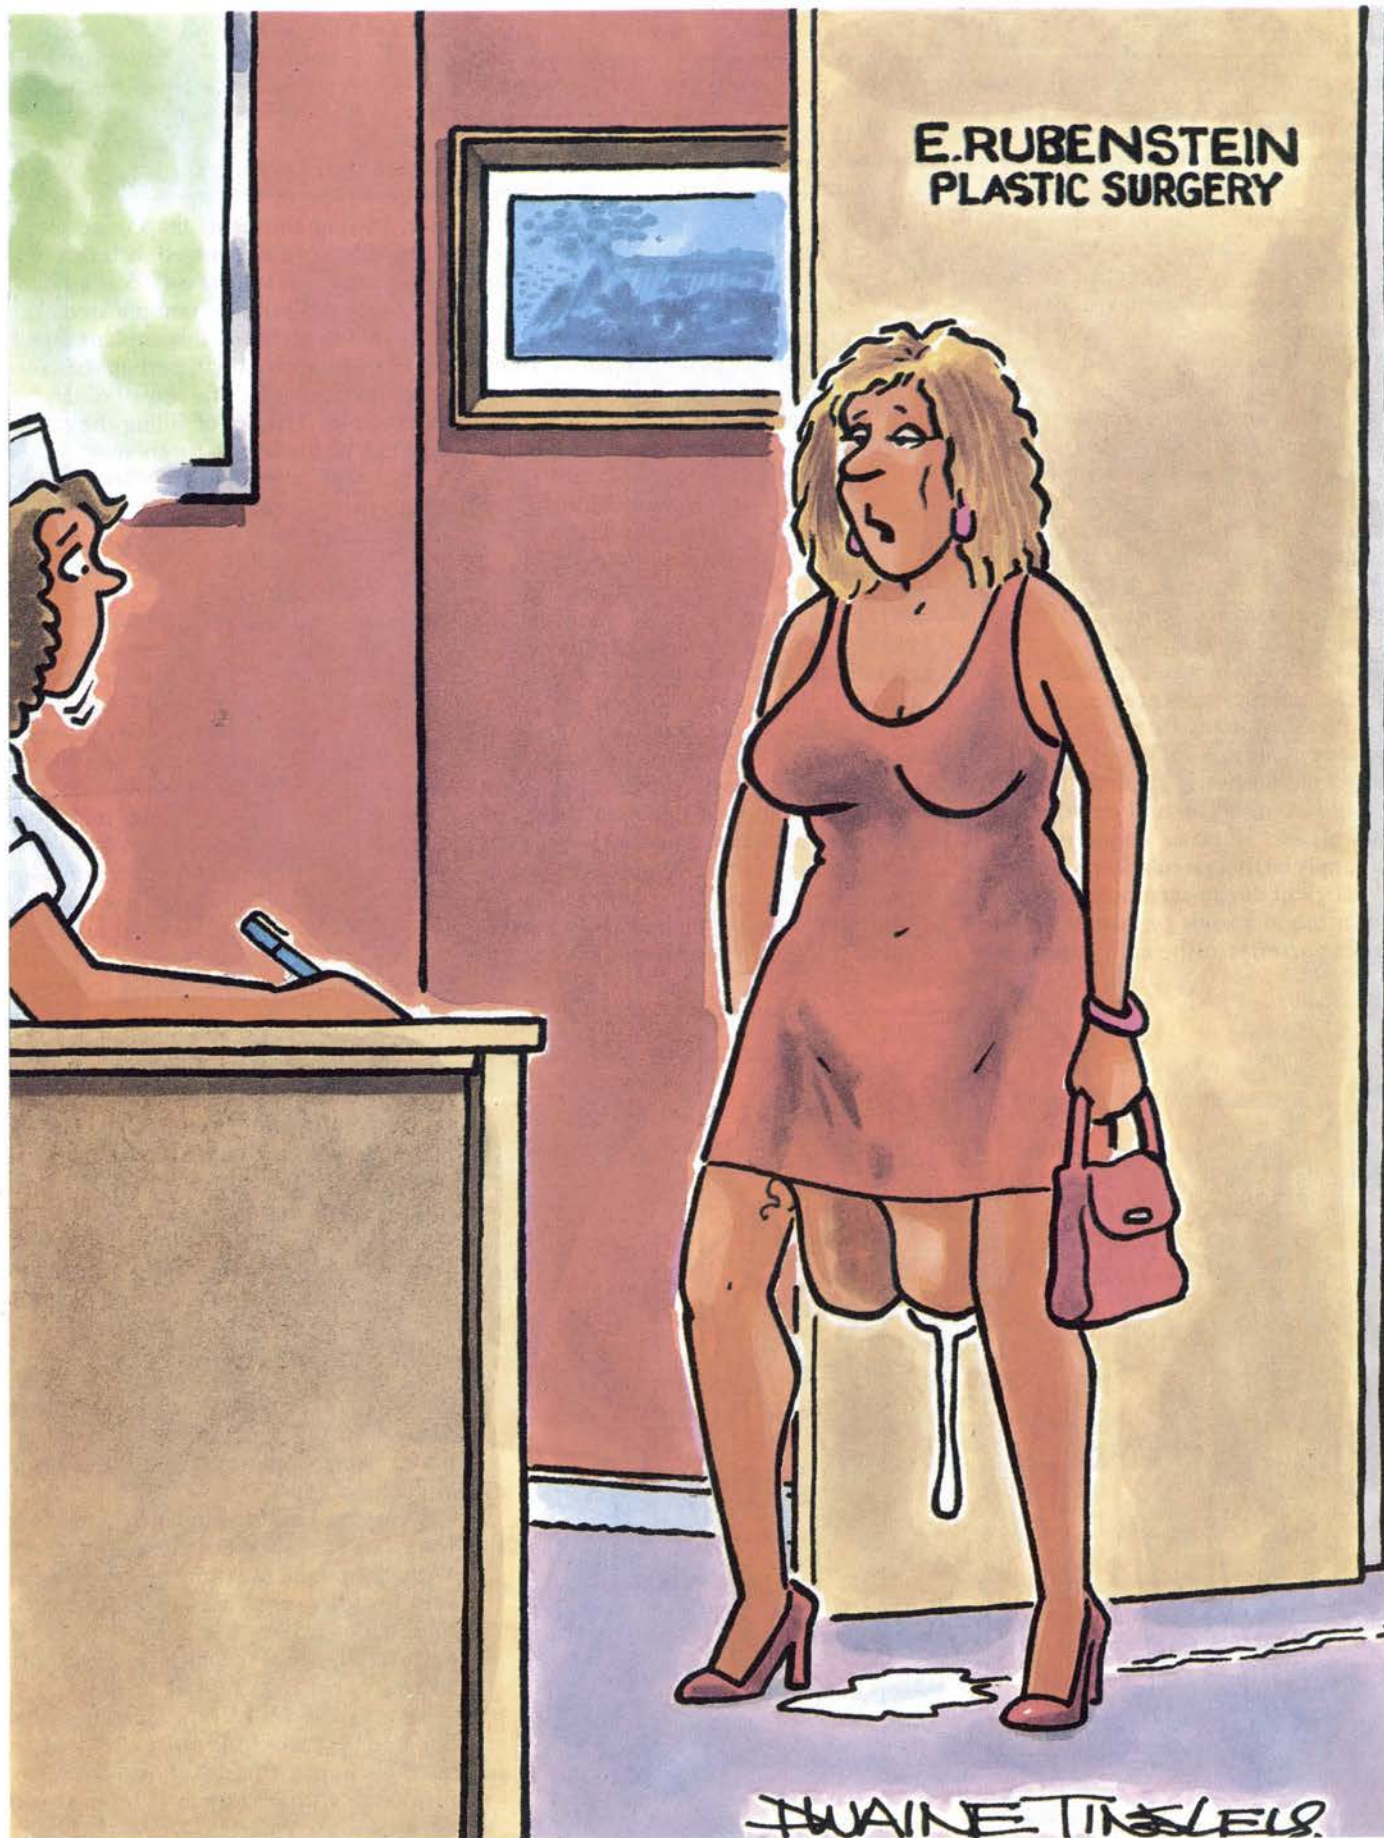

"I felt a little queasy," he continued. "It was just like that scene from Network when the older man says to the young girl, 'Now I don't do anything on a first date.' Well, I said something like that to Charlotte and hoped she got the message. If we took our time, it might work out all right. But Charlotte was something else. Soon after we got started, everything fell apart. She got carried away, and I just wasn't there. I wasn't ready for passion like that!

"If I had a half-erection—and I think I did—it got lost in the storm. Finally, everything stopped. Silence. Then the devastating question: 'So what's wrong?' Well, the postmortem was not much help. There were no repeat performances.

"Then came Barbara. She was younger, but very understanding. In bed with her, when things didn't happen right away, she just snuggled closer and suggested we sleep a little. She liked to sleep with her leg across my middle. I guess her idea was if anything stirred, she would feel it with her inner thigh. Well, that thigh felt real good to me, but still nothing happened. I told myself maybe I was trying too hard. Still nothing. Maybe when I woke up in the morning. But it just didn't happen! She was a good sport about it. We talked of seeing each other later. Unfortunately, she added the words, almost to herself, 'But I can't go

"Oh, yeah. Here it comes! I'm gonna sneeze; I'm gonna sneeze!"

"How much for a radical pussy overhaul, sweetie?"

To some teenagers it is embarrassing to have an erection all the time. To this older man it was a delight!

through that again.' Well, that did it! I called my family doctor. He sent me to a urologist for a complete medical and suggested I check with a therapist to see if it was due to some emotional problem."

Medical examinations showed that circulatory changes over the years were the cause of his lack of erectile response. Like so many men, he thought that erection is a muscular ability. This is a key to why a man feels like such a failure when he has this problem. Actually, the erection has nothing to do with strength or muscle tone. It is caused by the pressure of blood building up in the two long cylinders that run the length of the penis (the corpora cavernosa).

This solid buildup normally occurs when sexual messages are received from the brain, but many things can stop this from happening. A variety of physical illnesses, medications (such as those for high blood pressure) and emotional distractions can all cause impotence. Or it can simply be that circulation has become less efficient due to accumulation of residue in blood vessels or stored fat compressing arteries as the man grows older.

Whatever the cause, a man will not be firm enough unless the two long chambers are completely filled. That is precisely what an implant does—replaces the natural buildup.

An impotent man may choose from two main types of penile implants. In its simplest form a length of silicone material (similar to that used for breast implants) is placed in each chamber. The result is a penis that is firm but not rigid, moving easily to a down position after lovemaking. Size and length will approximate the man's previous best erections.

In society as it is at present, of course, men are not supposed to show any sign of having a penis; so concealment is a consideration. At the beach, for example, men with this type of implant will wear jockey shorts under boxer-style trunks. In street dress an eyeglass case carried in the side pocket will provide adequate cover. At the gym, if this man wishes to use the communal showers, he should not be averse to appearing well-endowed or somewhat aroused.

For men who are embarrassed by this kind of thing, scientists have developed a more expensive implant that can be inflated. A small reservoir is implanted in the scrotum; this holds liquid that can be moved into the two chambers of the penis, producing a firm erection. After intercourse, pressing on a certain spot triggers flow of the liquid to the reservoir, leaving the penis limp once more. Although more is involved with this type of implant, it is still classified as a minor operation. It sounds complicated, but men who have chosen this implant report being very happy with it, perhaps because it duplicates the natural way of obtaining an erection. The act of filling the chambers can be made into foreplay.

The "solid state" type has some interesting psychological advantages though. For instance, one man who had the inflatable kind kept it fully inflated for three whole months. He was not supposed to do this because of possible damage to the reservoir, but he was adamant: "I liked that good solid feeling!" He was making up for years of impotence. To some teenagers it is embarrassing to have an erection all the time: To this older man it was a delight!

How expensive are these implants? The solid-state totals $3,000 to $4,000. It is a minor operation and requires one day in the hospital. (The executive was admitted at 7 a.m. and went home at noon the following day.) Stitches from the half-inch incision (under the base of the penis) are removed the following week. The incision is made in an area where the scar is hardly noticeable.

The inflatable implant also requires only a half-inch incision, but because of the more complex structure, the hospital stay is from three to four days. The cost of this type is approximately twice as much. One recipient compared this with the cost of buying a new car: "I looked at it this way. My car was operating okay—my penis wasn't—the choice was easy!"

Since this operation is to restore lost function, many health-insurance plans will cover it. Technically, it's no different than restoring function to fingers that have been immobilized from poor circulation.

With any kind of implant there is always a certain number that won't "take." With the penile implant, this number is very low, between 1% and 2%. Even in these cases, where the implant must be removed, it can be replaced after a short waiting period.

To give an idea of how cherished this implant becomes, one man who had to have his implant removed was asked by his doctor rather casually if he was sure he wanted it replaced. The man almost grabbed the doctor by the lapels: "Don't even ask such a thing. I want it back as soon as possible and so does my wife!"

JARTOS

"No, not another imitator. The real thing!"

"What in the hell are you wasting your time on now?"

"We are making love again for the first time in years. A whole part of our lives has come back to us."

There is an important step that must be taken before considering an implant: the medical and psychological checkup. Psychological causes alone account for a hefty percentage of all impotence. Distracting emotions can play havoc with an erection. Sexual performance is one of the first things to be affected by worry, fear, tension or loss. I remember one case where the husband was heavily invested in the stock market. His wife complained bitterly to me: "I can't go on like this. Every time the market is down, it means no sex for a week. Our love life goes up and down with the Dow-Jones averages!" The mind is the real organ of eroticism and, when it is distracted for any reason, sexuality tends to disappear.

Often these psychological causes are fairly obvious and easy to identify. A man will say: "I was doing all right until such and such happened." As the patient talks, a specific circumstance emerges that will coincide with the beginning of his impotence. Having the wife attend these sessions often facilitates the investigation.

With modern treatment methods—ranging from Masters and Johnson, desensitization techniques and the use of sex surrogates—many emotional blocks can be effectively removed. Some of my colleagues go so far as to say that if the problem is in any way psychological, it is a mistake to go for the implant.

My experience is that many deep-seated, long-term problems are very resistant to change. With some other psychological problems, therapy can often be successful by working around the emotional block, developing other areas of a patient's life. But there is no working around an erection problem—either you have one or you don't. If sex therapy is unable to restore full function (and I mean full function) within a reasonable length of time, an implant is the logical solution to the problem. Therapies that extend over many years can jeopardize the man's marital relationship, to say nothing of losing good years of lovemaking, with still no guarantee of success!

Sometimes a very interesting psychological effect is observed following an implant. The technical term for this is operant conditioning. It works this way. When a man is suddenly able to have intercourse, the very act of doing it can resolve the emotional block that was causing the problem in the first place. For instance, one man who had an inflatable implant found that after months of enjoying intercourse, his confidence was built up to the point where he began having erections without inflating his implant. Repeated successes in sex had gradually reconditioned his responses, and the block was removed. Years of therapy may not have achieved this complete a result. Incidentally, this man even considered not having his implant removed: He was reluctant to give up the privilege of having sex anytime he wanted to please his wife.

Other methods of dealing with physical impotence are available, and even take precedence in some circles over implants. Therapists tend to be committed to established treatment methods, no matter how long-term. Men who have only slight erectile ability are counseled in using alternative strategies to keep their sexual relationships alive. Therapists are aware of the reports from delighted implant recipients, but they are trained to be suspicious of "quickie cures" or the "flight into health," which they regard as just another way of avoiding treatment. Patients are cautioned about "false hopes." It isn't an "elixir of youth," it won't "fix a bad marriage," etc.

One clinician writes: "If a man has no specific partner, the implant is a waste of time." But that's like saying it's a waste of time to restore a man's ability to walk unless there is a specific place he wants to walk to! Another therapist points out there is danger: The implant is liable to ruin a marriage since the wife will be insecure about her husband's new ability and fear he may stray! On the other hand, what kind of marriage is held together by impotence?

Interviews with recipients and their wives tell a completely different story than many therapists. Here are some typical reports:

"We are making love again for the first time in years. A whole part of our lives has come back to us."

"It's not just during lovemaking—the good feeling goes on all day. I feel like I've got my manhood back!"

"Now I am able to keep going just like I used to. I had given up on believing it would ever happen again."

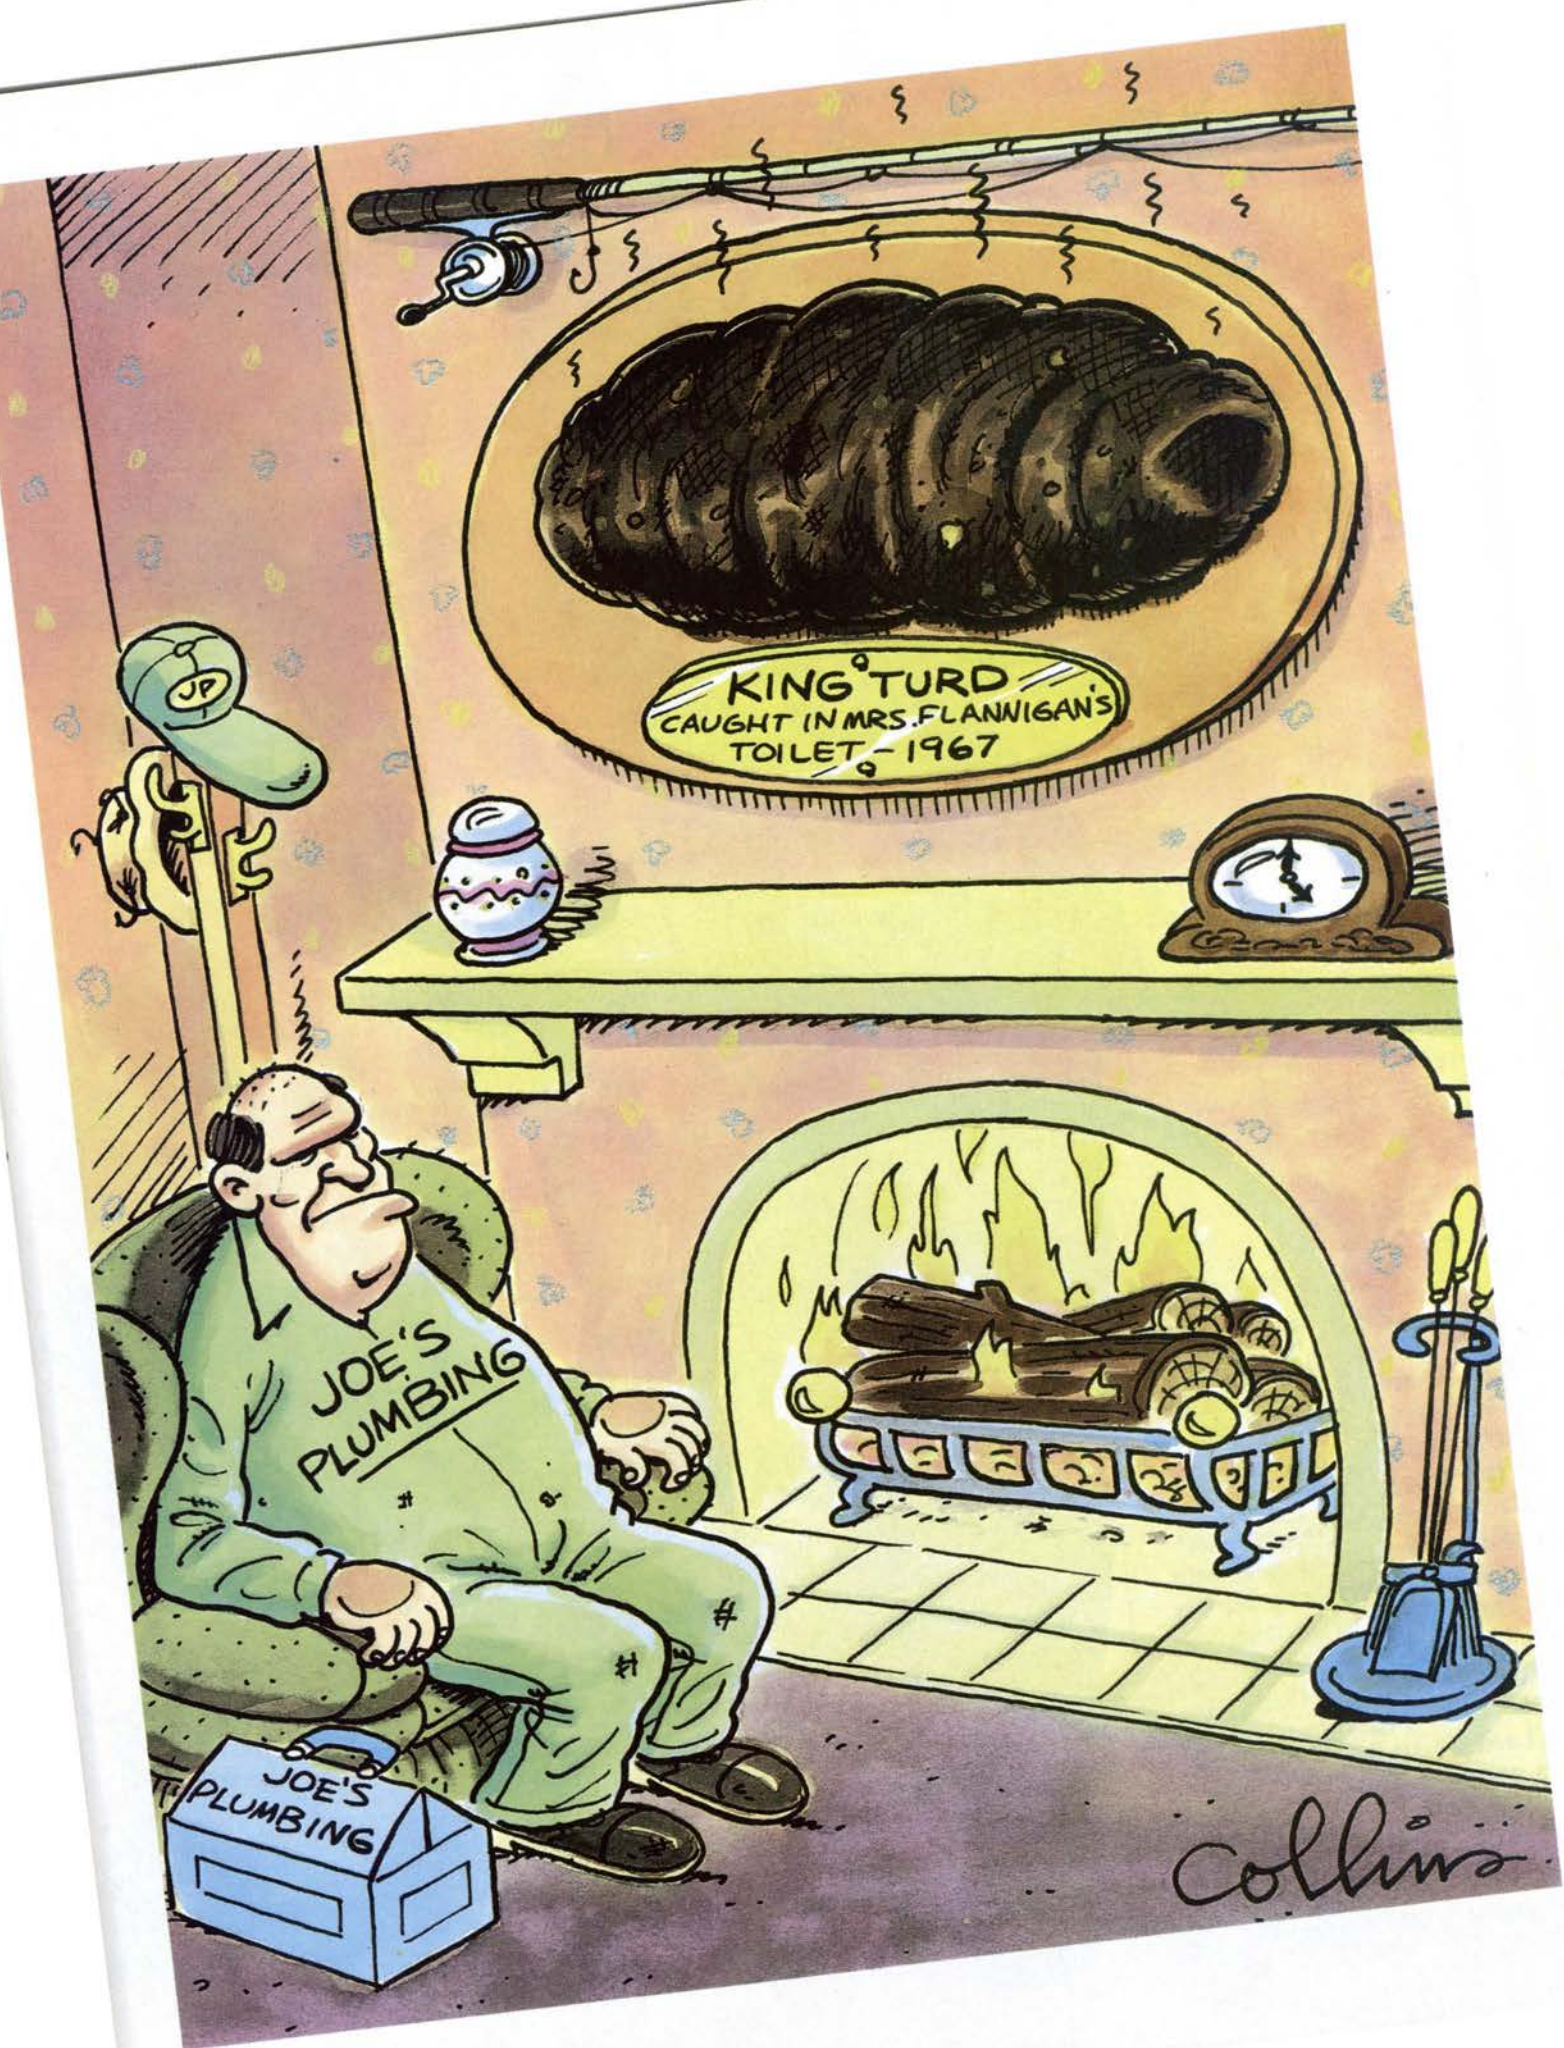

"It's like having a new car after years of struggling with the old stop-and-start jalopy!"

Perhaps the most important feeling of all is expressed by this grateful implant recipient: "To be deep inside her—and stay that way—it's a feeling like no other. I had almost forgotten what it's like."

"Ha! You're in trouble now! Here comes my attorney!"

Although the party ended hours ago, these revelers are still bursting with spirit. He can't hold back his desire to make her wet for their own get-together. They end up in a golden shower that isn't exactly sobering, but the besotted bimbo turns on to the feeling of bubbles in her cunt. "I'll fix your plumbing," he promises, popping his cork. Moments later her pussy, pinker than champagne, is thoroughly drenched. He can't wait to taste the fruits of his labors, and the two are soon locked together in vintage lust. It's a very good year, indeed.

"I'll tell you what's not natural: To feel sexy and not have an erection. That just never made any sense!"

If a man goes for a hip implant, is he looking for a "quickie cure"? Is the implanted dental structure that provides sound teeth a search for an "elixir of youth"? Or is the man merely taking executive action to maintain his quality of life? More than 50,000 men have received implants. The youngest was 19 and the oldest 86.

A few weeks after receiving his implant, our executive friend reported a marked psychological change. "I felt an enormous burden had been lifted. I didn't realize how depressed I had become with this problem. The whole thing was a terrible downer."

When he first went for the implant, he had some very realistic concerns. Would it be too predictable, feel artificial or mechanical, not spontaneous?

"I was afraid it might not be okay, but it was! It's exactly like when I first started lovemaking years ago. Every time I was in a sexual situation in those days, I had an erection. It was totally predictable, and that was just fine. In fact, I expected to have an erection just like I expected the girl to have a vagina. It all seemed so natural. I'll tell you what's not natural: To feel all sexy and not have an erection. That just never made any sense!"

That an implant feels natural is quite logical. A man's body has no way of telling whether the penis is firm because it is engorged with blood or whether it is filled with the implant. Erotic sensations and external sensitivity are precisely the same in either case.

The executive describes how two major problems with sex were eliminated by his implant. "I always had that feeling of urgency: to get in before I lost it. Everything had to be timed for when I was ready. Now we can start when she feels ready. Then there was the constant danger of losing it before she was satisfied. What's really great now is that she can even go for a second orgasm if she wants. I may have climaxed with the first one, but I can stay right with her all the way now. I like holding all that passion in my arms!"

There was one benefit, however, from all his prior difficulties. He had developed a thorough knowledge of erotic foreplay. Without intercourse all these techniques and strategies had seemed like a kind of apology. Now they made him a very successful lover.

How do women react to all this? One wife said that women will soon be asking their partners to have an implant. Unreliable performance can be very unnerving, and this tension can be enough to distract a woman from her climax. For many women to reach that peak, confidence is essential.

One wife explains why the implant was necessary in her marriage: "Our lovemaking was getting more and more difficult. It was like going to a concert where the music could run down and stop at any moment, or the orchestra getting all tuned up and not being able to play. Who could enjoy that? I didn't even want to get started for fear of being let down."

No matter how understanding the woman is, there is no way of escaping this problem. One woman, a college professor in her late 40s, seemed to have accepted her situation. She was able to tolerate her husband's limitations and spoke of him fondly. But one day she did something that was unusual for her. She had a sexual experience with one of her students. He was 23.

In our next session she kept repeating: "A young man is really something! A young man is really something!" Then she added, "My husband—I love him dearly—but he does tend to fizzle out, the poor fellow." With an implant this "poor fellow" could change his wife's opinion about him dramatically, and she wouldn't have to look elsewhere for good sex, endangering their marriage.

There are a number of emotional traps a wife can fall into when her husband begins to suffer from impotence. She may feel unattractive or a failure as a wife. It is almost certain that she will consider herself unstimulating. She may also feel blame for her husband's despondency.

One wife told me: "Impotence almost destroyed my husband. I was beginning to see him as powerless. The implant has literally given me back my marriage!"

Another woman saw some humor in her situation: "When we were young, we were told not to do it. Now we are in our prime sexually and ready to make up for lost time, only to find our man's performance is fading!"

A final note about the women in these men's lives. Does lovemaking after the implant feel natural? Every wife I have spoken to says that it does. One put it quite bluntly. "It is the same penis except that now it's hard and inside."

What about the divorced or single man? How important is this for him? Any problems of impotence make him extremely vulnerable. Women are liable to

"Awright, Eric! Ya got her bra off! Now go for the panties!"

"Sit on your face?! Man, I told you I ain't into any sadomasochistic shit!"

Now there is no reason why older couples cannot make love as often as they wish.

react abruptly to his limitations. His fear of this can cause him to shy away from new relationships. He is prey to loneliness and depression. All this changes when he gets an implant. He is now absolutely secure in his ability. His fears are immediately reduced and subsequently eliminated. His successes build up his confidence and self-trust through the operant-conditioning process.

Sometimes the effect can be so successful it is almost humorous. One young man had a history of being pathologically shy on meeting new women. But he reported a wonderful experience after he received his implant. He was finally able to ask a girl to dance. The music was slow and dreamy. As they moved closer together, he knew that his partner felt the presence of his manhood. It gave him a sense of pride and confidence he had never experienced before!

What will religious groups have to say about all this? After all, it does make possible a great deal more sexuality in men and women of all ages. Could this lead to promiscuity? Interestingly enough, it has exactly the opposite effect. It is the man who is insecure about his sexual powers who tends to be promiscuous. He compulsively seeks new partners, believing it is sexual pleasure he is after, but it is really the pleasure of being reassured and validated. The man with an implant has no need to prove his sexual ability. He knows he has it. He can relax and get on with his life without endangering his marriage or the health of his partner. Another reason why this development should find favor with established religion is that children are not produced by foreplay, no matter how well-orchestrated.

Will Women's Liberation have something to say? Well, women have a long tradition of being able to have intercourse whenever they wanted. They could please their men. The penile implant is a great equalizer: Men can now return the favor! A man doesn't have to be fully aroused in order for intercourse to take place. Many recipients report great satisfaction in this extra ability to give their partners pleasure. Once they begin intercourse, their feelings become aroused, and they enjoy the experience.

What about society? Since people are living longer lives (better nutrition, exercise and medical care), the penile implant will become more important. These extra years can be a blessing rather than a burden. An active sex life will enable older couples to enjoy each other more fully and be more likely to stay together.

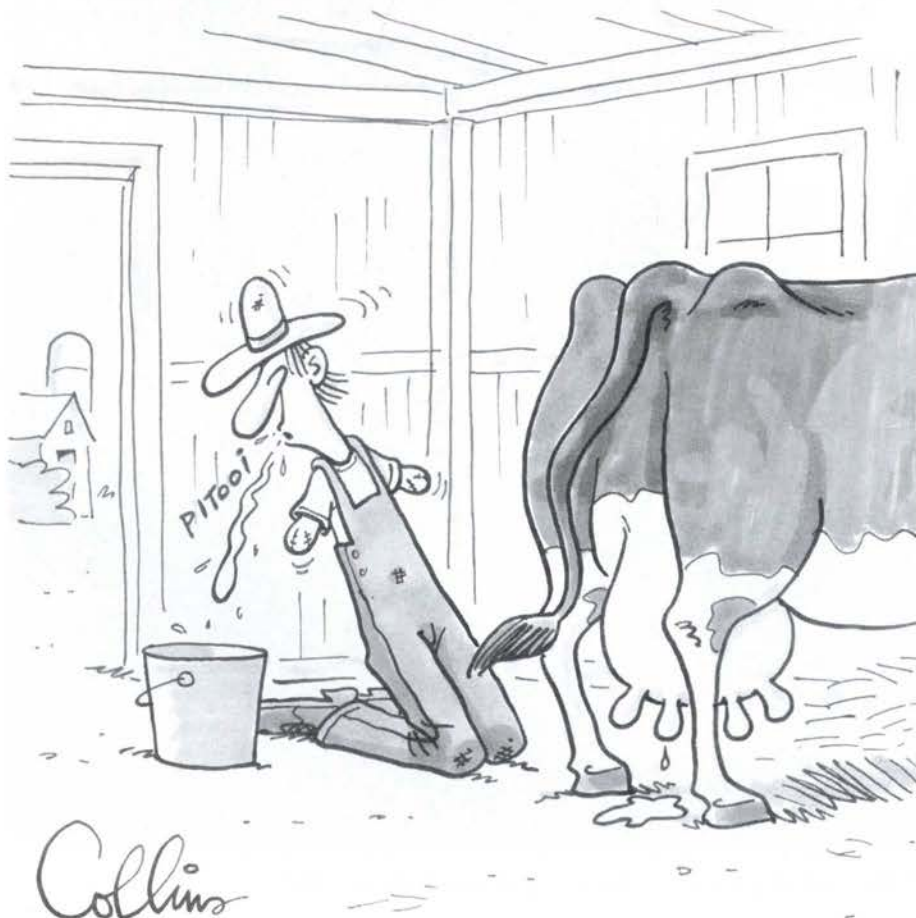

Another change can take place in our society that is long overdue. Because of the loss of potency in later years we have always associated really great sex with the young. This is like associating the pleasures of reading with youth because they have such good eyes! Now there is no reason why older couples cannot also make love as often as they wish.

What happens to recipients a year or more after the implant? Follow-up interviews show that they get used to it. There are no more "rave reviews." The restoration of their potency is no longer a miraculous novelty. It tends to be accepted as just another part of their lives. This fits in with one of the basic findings of marriage counseling: "If sex is going badly, it is 90% of a marriage; if it is going well, it is 10%." Good sex just becomes part of life. Being accepted into the routine of these men's lives shows the naturalness of this implant. It completes the man's life so well that after a time he takes it for granted.

Are we overstating the benefits of the penile implant, painting too favorable a picture? You can check this very easily. Just ask any of the 50,000 or more men who have received implants this simple question: "How would you feel about having your implant removed?"

Many devices, gadgets and pieces of electrical equipment have been developed in an attempt to correct impotence, but only the penile implant exactly duplicates the natural erection process. My colleagues will no doubt continue to say: "But it is not for everyone. Even if it were, that might mean several million implants." But far more men than that have been fitted with reading glasses. Any man who wishes to restore his sex life should consider having an implant. The days of the toothless and the hard-of-hearing are long gone. Now it is time for the poor fellow who can't get it up to follow suit. Further information concerning both types of implants can be obtained from your local urologist.

William Duff, Ph.D., earned his degree in counseling psychology from UCLA. As a psychotherapist working with individuals, couples and families since 1968, he has dealt with every aspect of sex therapy. He hosts a cable-television show Dr. Duff Presents... and is finishing a book, Sex Therapy and the Implant, which covers all the modern treatments (visualization, surrogates) as well as implants. 🐮

Probing the hull of a shipwreck during a vagabond idyll on a tropic isle fires Veronica's vivid imagination. As she pictures herself marooned with men of the sea, she acts out parts of her fantasy. Sun, surf and boredom build a sexual hunger satisfied in the legendary way—the stranded mates eat each other. Her self-explorations only partly calm the tides of her passion; so she scouts the hull for another explorer, intent on comparing sea-faring fantasies. Whoever spies Veronica when she's spinning a sailing yarn has a good chance of heaving to with her for an old-fashioned exchange of tails.

HUSTLER HUMOR

What's the trouble, Mac?" the sympathetic bartender questioned the morose drinker. "Why don't you tell me about it?"

"I got caught today screwing my next-door neighbor," groaned the fellow.

"Hey, that's heavy! Who caught you," pursued the bartender, "her husband?"

"No," moaned the drinker, "the guy's wife."

Question: What was the first government-subsidized housing project?

Answer: Uncle Tom's Cabin.

I don't see why you insisted that your wife wear a chastity belt while you're away at the convention," said the man to his closest friend. "After all, Ralph—between us as old buddies—with Blanche's face and figure, who'd want to screw her?"

"I know, I know," replied Ralph, "but when I get home, I can always say I lost the key."

The doctor apologized, "I'm sorry to phone so early in the morning, but I've got some news for you. Which would you rather hear first, the bad news or the very bad news?"

"Start with the bad," said the nervous patient.

"The diagnosis is that you've got 24 hours to live," said the doctor.

The man gasped, then asked, "What's the very bad news?"

"I couldn't get you on the phone yesterday."

Question: What do you call a black midget in Ireland?

Answer: A leprecoon.

Could you perhaps describe the expression on your husband's face when you're having sex?" asked the marriage counselor.

"Well, usually it's sort of contorted with tension and excitement," replied the woman, "but I remember once when it was contorted with anger."

"With anger? And why was that?"

"That was the time he was peeking through the bedroom window."

Stanley was taking his first airplane ride and had been so nervous that he had been plagued by constipation for a full week before the flight.

Finally flight day came, and after takeoff he felt so much better that he decided to move to the back of the plane and visit one of the lavatories. While Stanley was having a hard time relieving himself, he heard the door to the next lavatory open and close. He listened while a gentleman crapped noisily.

Stanley sighed through the thin partition, "I can tell that you were constipated too, but it's great to hear that you've been lucky."

To which the man replied: "It's a big relief, and it will be even better when I get my pants down!"

Question: Did you hear about the new gay designer jeans?

Answer: They have a zipper in the back and knee pads in the front!

Howard and Jenny's marriage was really going down the tubes. So Jenny bought a sexy negligee and decided to greet Howard with nothing else on when he came home from work that night. Howard was quite surprised at the greeting he received.

"Wow . . ." stuttered Howard.

Jenny gushed, "I've got an idea, honey. Let's go out tonight and have some real fun!"

"Sounds good, dear," blurted Howard. "But do me a favor. If you get home first, leave the light on in the hallway."

The HUSTLER Dictionary defines pubic hair as: organic dental floss!

Question: Why do Turks put their trash in clear-plastic bags?

Answer: So Armenians can window-shop.

Two Polish carpenters were framing a new house when the older one spotted the younger one throwing nails away. He'd hammer one into the lumber, then toss the next nail down. Soon there were nails all over the ground.

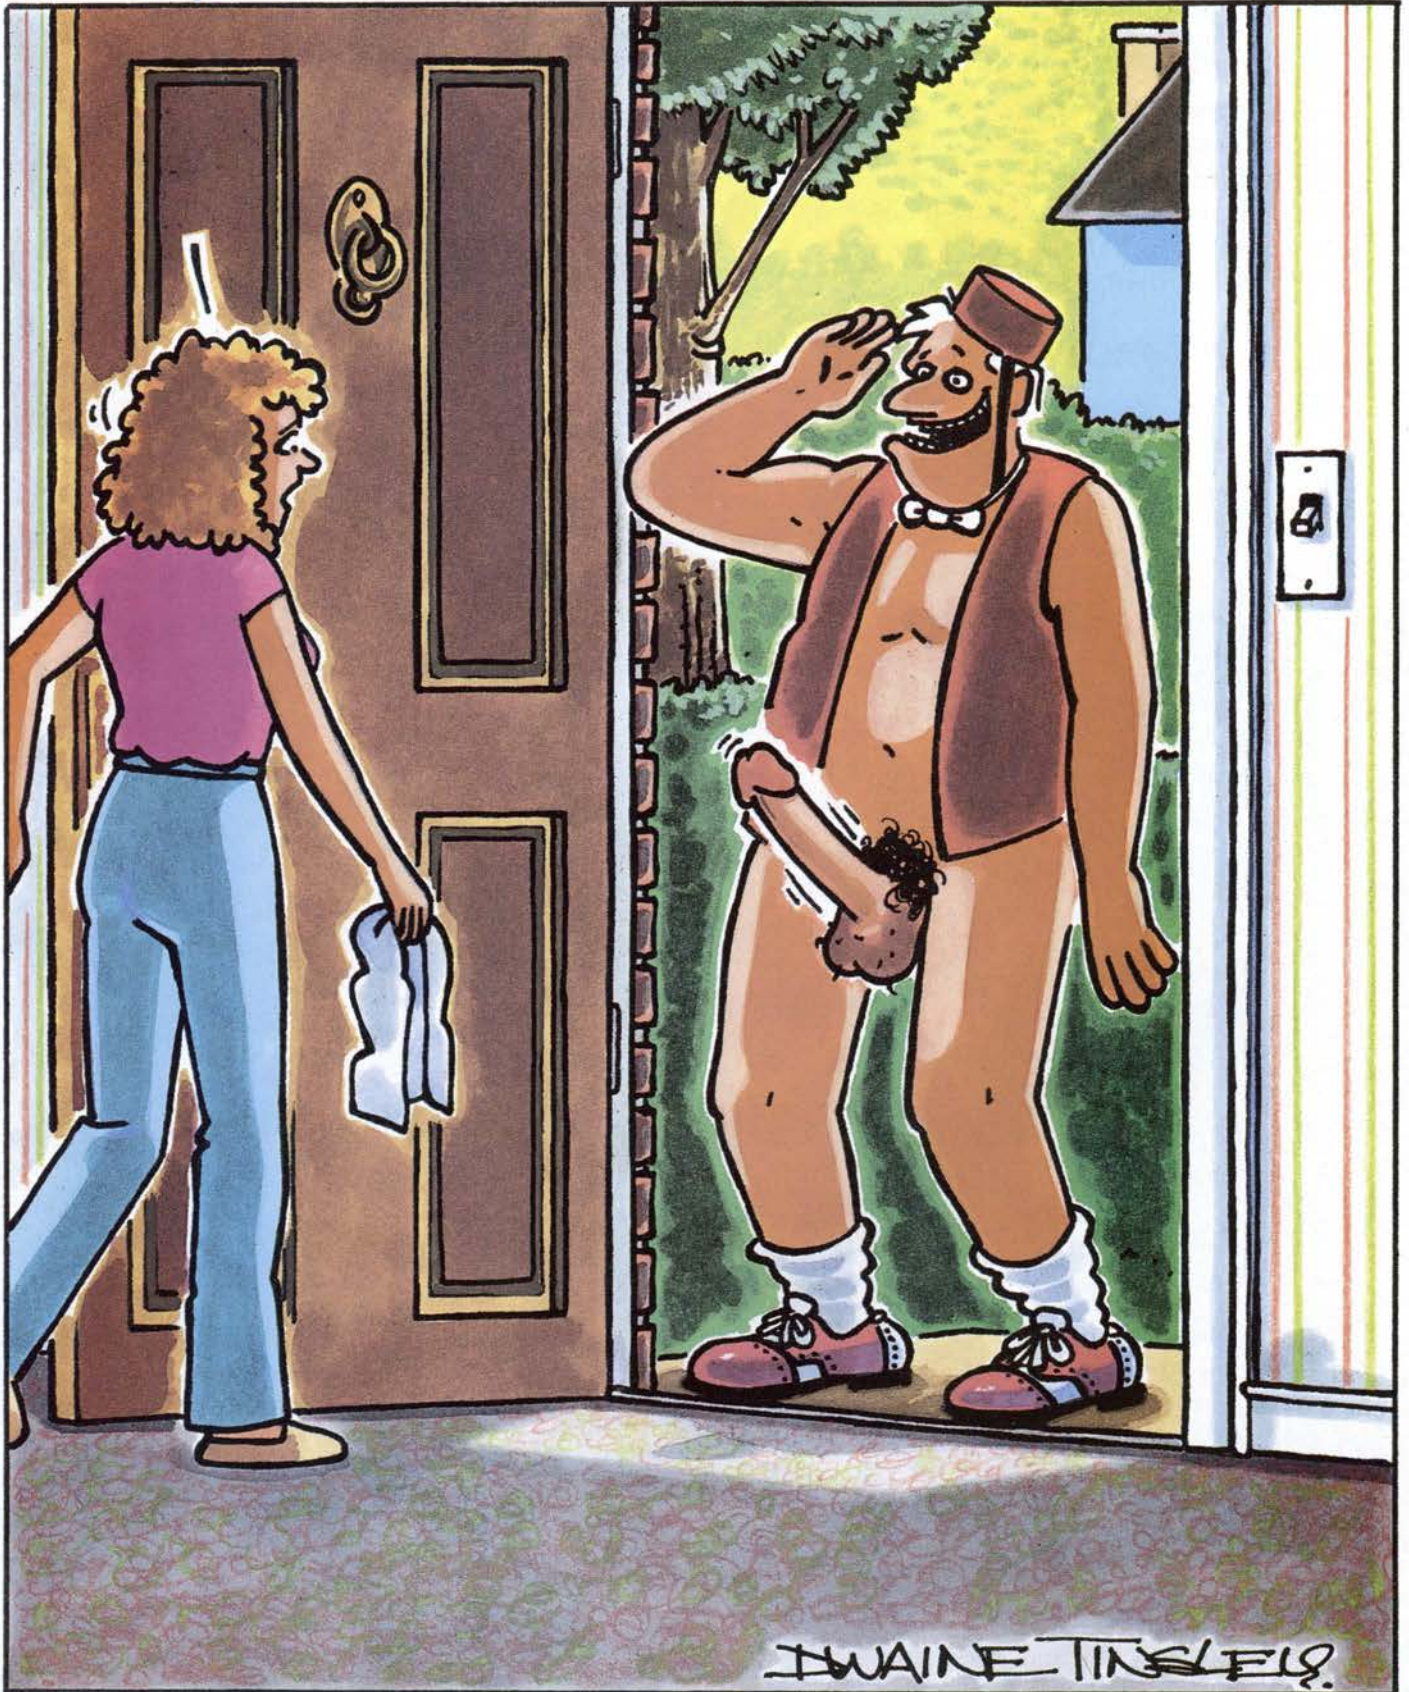

"Are you crazy?" asked the older Pole as he climbed down from his ladder. "Why are you throwing those good nails away?"

"I can't hit them with the hammer is why," said the younger one. "The head is on the wrong side of the nail."

"There's nothing wrong with these nails, you idiot," said the older carpenter as he began to pick them up. "They go on the other side of the house!"

"Afternoon, ma'am, pecker-gram!"

As the single-engine Cessna took off, it skimmed the mirrored blue surface of the lake, the twin V wakes of the pontoons racing toward shore. Content, Jason Campbell stood on the wharf and watched the plane climb, shrinking in minutes to a dot the size of a blackfly. It would be two weeks before he saw it again. No telephones, no boss, no bills—just the peace and quiet of the wilderness.

Jason had never had a woman who was so tight, like a greedy, hot, velvet fist.

A weather-beaten log cabin sat under the pine trees behind Jason. From this remote, tangled green thickness of the Maine wilderness a man would have to hike three days through rugged terrain before he reached civilization.

Two hours later she hiked into camp.

Naked, Jason was waist deep in the lake, washing off before lunch.

"Hi." Her voice was relaxed and cheerful. Despite the weight of her backpack, she carried herself with the fluid grace of a dancer. She was in her early 20s with short blond hair and bedroom eyes the color of emeralds. A pair of old bluejeans were molded to her long legs and every curve of her tight ass. It was obvious that under her T-shirt she was braless. Her large, firm tits bounced with every step.

"I'm Heather Wilson," she smiled as she swung her backpack to the ground. "I've been camping on the other side of the lake the past couple of days and, when I saw the plane, I thought I'd come over and say hello."

"Jason Campbell. I didn't expect company," he said, surprised.

"So I noticed," Heather laughed. She liked what she'd noticed. The water was crystal clear, and she started to stare.

Jason swallowed as he stared back. "There's a pot of coffee on the camp stove if you want a cup," he told her. "I'll join you after I rinse off."

Heather started for the cabin. She hesitated and then, seeming to make up her mind, she came back. Her eyes smoldered with green fire when she looked at Jason. "I need to wash first." Her voice was husky.

Heather smiled, watching Jason stare as she slowly lifted the T-shirt. Her stomach appeared smooth and flat, then her breasts, firm and large with jutting nipples that begged to be sucked. The shirt hit the ground. Her hands cupped her breasts, massaging them before sliding down to her jeans. The zipper slid down, and then her jeans and panties were bunched around her feet.

Her cunt was covered with a fine, blond down. The lips glistened with her juices. She stepped out of her jeans and stood there, her smile inviting Jason, challenging him, to prove that he was man enough to satisfy her.

When she'd started peeling off her T-shirt, Jason had stood there, unable to do anything but stare. With each thud of his heart his cock had swelled. The purple tip thrust out of the water like the head of a sea serpent.

Heather gasped as Jason walked out of the water. His cock swayed like a large branch in a storm.

The musky smell of her pussy filled Jason as he placed Heather on the blanket of pine needles. Her legs spread with the motion. He would have driven the peg home, anchoring his desire, but she stopped him.

"I've got to be on top. It's going to take some time to get all that in me," she said.

Jason lay on his back. Heather straddled him, her cunt lips puffy, her juices dripping. He could see the swollen red button of her clit. Her musky smell sent a pounding through his body, making his prick feel like a telephone pole. He grabbed a breast in each hand as Heather eagerly lowered herself.

Glistening with desire, Heather's pussy lips kissed the purple head of his dick. She eased down, and the pulsing mushroom was inside.

Jason had never had a woman who was so tight, like a greedy, hot, velvet fist. His prick stretched her pussy to the limit. With almost half it inside her, she rose until just the tip was in that sweet cunt. Down she slid. Up. Down. With each stroke she took more cock.

Heather picked up speed, taking Jason's entire cock. Head thrown back, sweat dripped from her breasts. She quaked. His cock felt like it was in a vise as her orgasm squeezed him.

Jason flipped Heather on her back. He drove into her, his balls making wet, juicy slaps with her ass. She was building again. Her ass rose with each slam, the pair bucking together like animals.

Cum built in Jason's balls like a volcano ready to erupt. Heather bit her lip, whipping her head from side to side. She screamed as she came. Jason felt like he was exploding as he came, then collapsed on top of her.

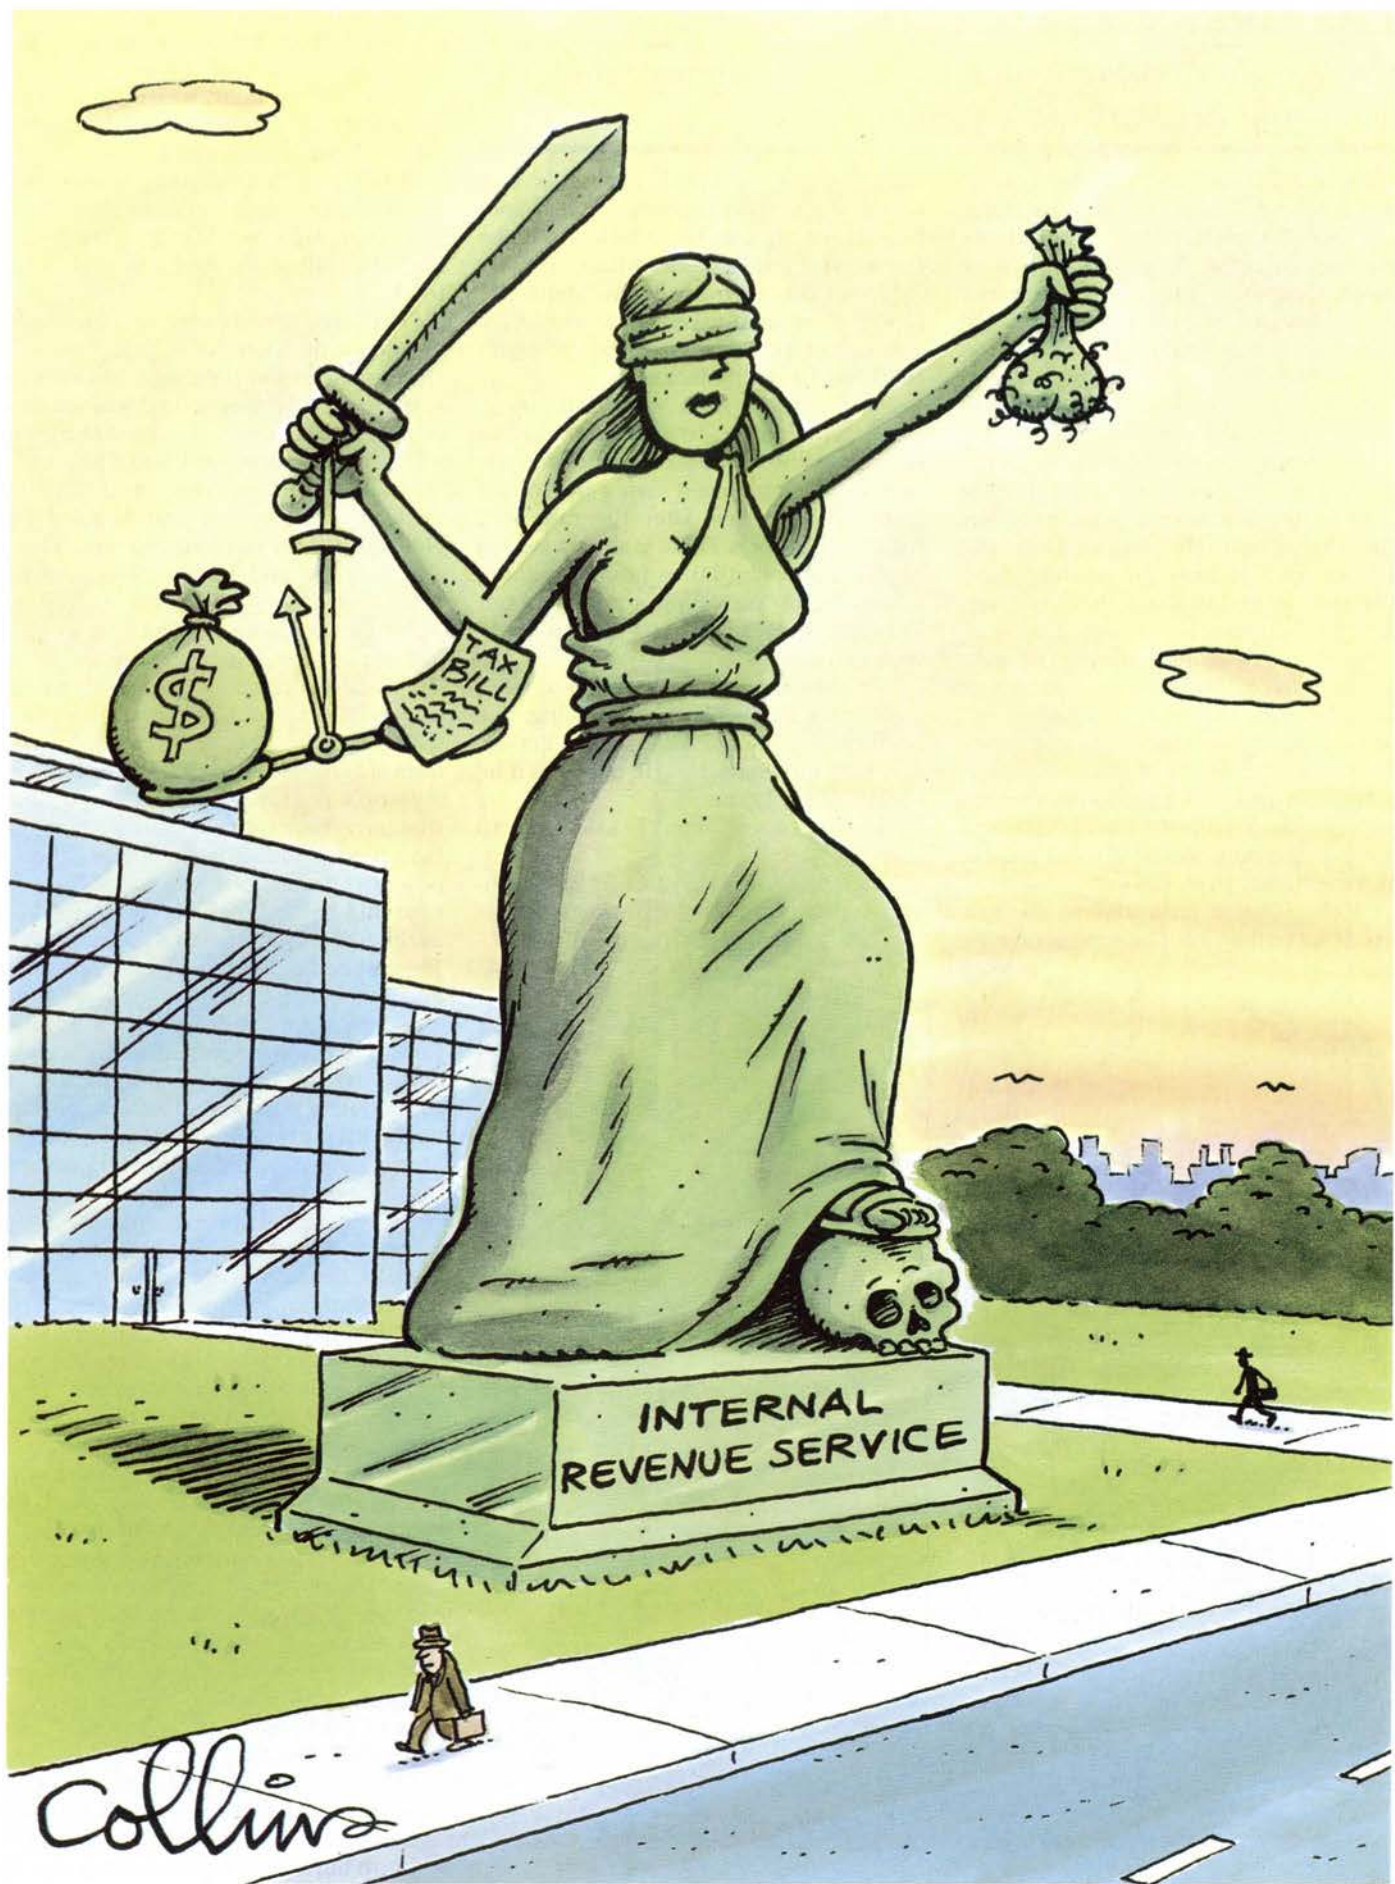

* * *

That night Jason and Heather skinny-dipped in the moonlight, playing like a couple of kids. They spent most of the rest of the night fucking.

The sun was high in the east when Jason finally woke. A warm breeze blew off the lake. Heather slept while Jason dressed and went out to build a fire. Soon bacon sizzled in the cast-iron skillet. The rich smell of perking coffee mingled in the air with the aroma of scrambled eggs. Jason thought about Heather.

"Harry, did you join the Booger of the Month Club?"

Heather stood in the door with Jason's 20-gauge shotgun pointed at her husband's chest.

She was 24 years old, a school teacher and divorced. Jason got the impression that the marriage had been a disaster, but she had changed the subject when he asked. One other thing he had learned about Heather: She was sex-starved. She hadn't been with a man since her divorce, and she was making up for lost fucking. Jason grinned. He would help her with that as soon as she woke up.

"Hello!" A man's voice hollered, interrupting Jason's thoughts. Under the pine trees by the lake strode a man big and burly like a bear. He was Jason's height, but weighed at least 50 pounds more. The man moved in a way that suggested the extra weight was not fat.

Jason frowned, then shrugged when he saw the rifle. What the hell? he thought. In the wilderness carrying a weapon isn't that unusual. Jason had a shotgun inside the cabin to take care of grizzlies.

With his backpack and clothes the man looked like a trapper except for one thing—pallid skin, like he'd spent most of his time hiding from the sun.

"Hello," Jason answered as the man strode up to the fire. The stranger leaned his rifle and backpack against a tree trunk. Jason stood and held out his hand, but the man ignored it as he knelt by the fire and speared a piece of bacon.

"Have you seen a woman, about 20, blond?" the man asked as he poured a cup of coffee. He smiled, but it didn't reach his flat cold black eyes.

"No," Jason lied, suddenly wary. Something didn't fit. Heather hadn't mentioned being with someone, and the man didn't look like a loving boyfriend. Jason decided that after the man left, he'd tell Heather. Then, if she wanted to see him, fine. Until then Jason was going to play it this way. "Now get the hell out of here." Jason's voice was hard as anger replaced surprise.

"This woman, she's my wife. Not quite right in the head. She'll say anything. I've been tracking her. I have to find her before she hurts herself." He talked as if he hadn't heard Jason.

"I've seen no one. I told you to leave."

"That so?" The man reached for another piece of bacon. The coffee cup was lost in a beefy hand. "Her trail leads here."

"Jason, that food smells great," Heather called from inside the cabin. "You should have woken me. I would have. . . ." She stood in the door, wearing one of Jason's shirts. The blood drained from her face. "Shawn," she gasped.

"I told you I'd find you." Shawn loaded scrambled eggs onto a plate. "Get your gear, Heather! You're coming with me!" He talked around a mouthful of food.

"No!" she cried. Her terrified eyes pleaded with Jason.

"You always did fight me." Shawn's remark sounded rehearsed. "I was too easy on you before. You'll obey me like a good wife when I'm done with you this time."

Shawn dumped the food on the ground as he stood and headed for Heather. Jason blocked his way. There was surprise and irritation in Shawn's black eyes.

"She's not going with you; so get the hell out of here," Jason ordered.

Shawn swung without warning, but Jason easily blocked the punch. Slow, Jason thought. Like most big men, he's never learned to fight. He depends on strength.

Jason's confident left jab was a blur, snapping back Shawn's head. Another jab whipped through the air, and then a power right. Shawn was jolted, but he kept his feet. When Jason moved in again, Shawn roared like a wounded bull. He grabbed Jason in a bear hug, lifting him off his feet.

Shawn's black eyes burned with rage. Jason's arms were pinned to his side by corded muscle bulging as it squeezed. Jason couldn't breathe. Pain racked his back. Ribs creaked. Desperate, he bit Shawn's nose, and the bear hug ceased. Jason landed at the feet of the towering rival, drops of blood raining from Shawn's twisted face. He kicked Jason in the ribs, lifting him off the ground.

The shotgun boomed. Shawn froze, his foot drawn back to kick. Heather stood in the door with Jason's 20-gauge shotgun pointed at her husband's chest. "Don't do it, Shawn. I'll kill you if I have to," she warned him. Her hands shook.

"Aww, honey. You know I sometimes get a little crazy." Shawn's voice was soothing as he took a step toward Heather, staring in her eyes, trying to hypnotize her. "I love you so much, sometimes I can't think straight. Come on, put the shotgun down, baby." Another step.

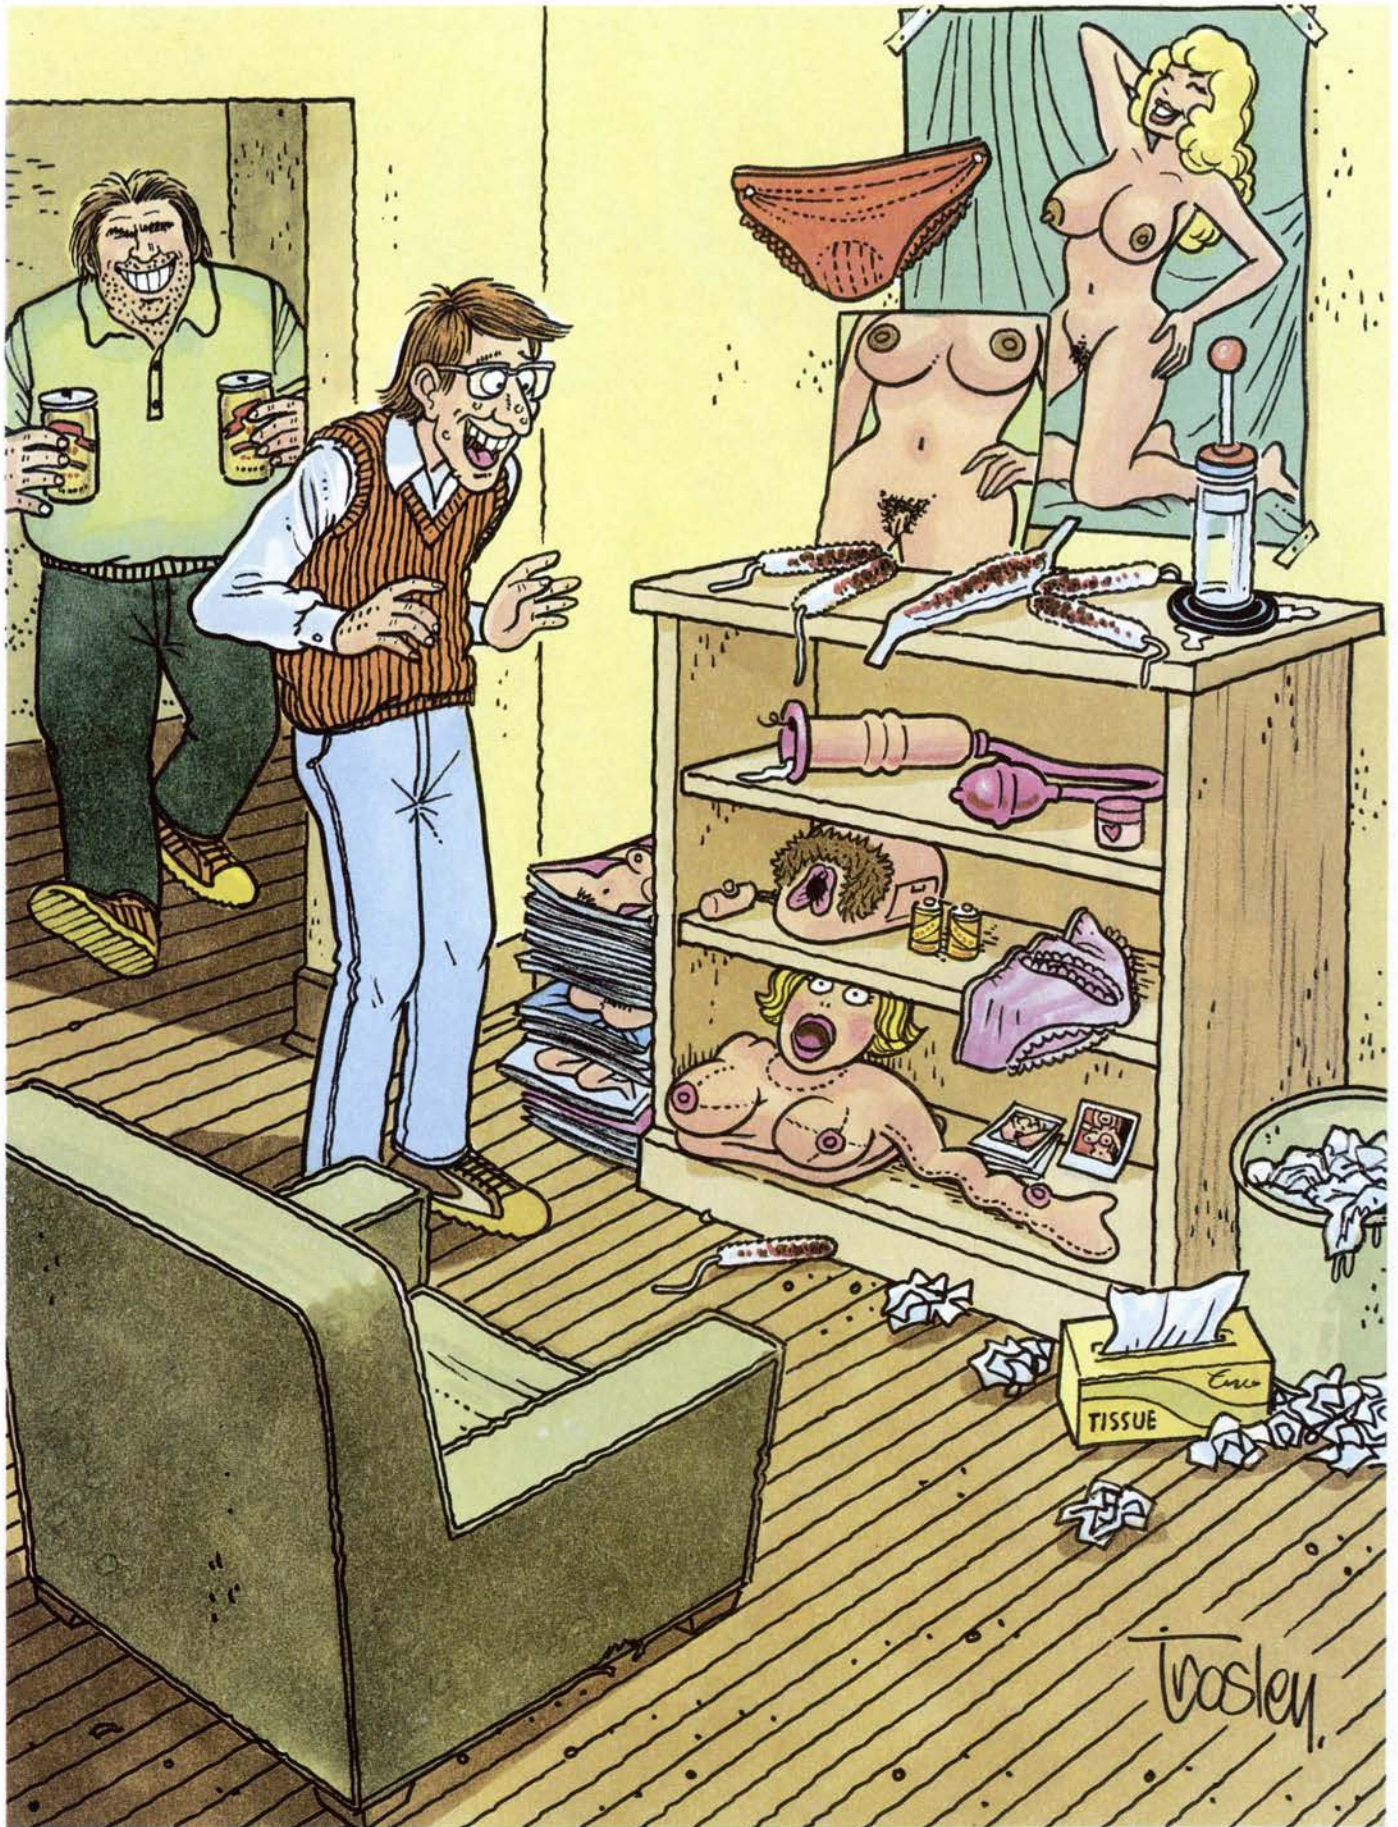

Heather's finger pressed the trigger. "I'm going to count to 5. If you're not gone, I'll kill you. I swear to God." Her voice choked with fear.

"Honey, you won't kill someone who loves you." Shawn's voice was soft and confident.

Jason burned with pain as he got to his

DAMN THE TORPEDOES

It's a voyeur's dream-come-true. While horny Harry charts a stretch of deserted beach, he focuses on a pair of babes thigh-hugging a ramrod of a raft. Harry's own cutter signals high tide when the boat beaches and the luscious lezzies dock their tongues in each other's ports. Believing this is one spread of sand he should survey up close, Harry drops his binocs, grabs his cock and moves in on his hot-blooded prey. They don't hear him coming until he's right in their faces, but it seems to inflate their desires. "That rubber raft is one hell of a ride," Jill says, "but it can't stand up to a prick."

The harder he got, the more it looked like his cock was growing from her mouth.

knees. He prayed that he could get to Shawn's rifle, which was leaning against the tree.

Shawn grew bolder and drew another step closer.

"2." Heather sounded like she was going to cry.

Shawn smiled and held his hands open wide in a gesture of peace. Jason crawled; it felt like a rib was broken.

"3."

"You're not a killer, Heather. Put the shotgun down, and we'll forget this ever happened." Shawn took another step.

Kaboom! Dirt sprayed Shawn's feet as Heather fired. He stopped as she pumped another shell into the chamber. Jason lunged for the tree and grabbed the rifle.

"Don't make me do it, Shawn." Heather pleaded.

"You won't do it," he told her.

"But I will," Jason told him. Shawn froze when he heard the rifle being cocked. Turning his head slowly, he looked over his shoulder. Jason had the rifle trained on Shawn's back.

"Leave!" Jason ordered. Part of him hoped that he would have to shoot Shawn.

Shawn backed up in slow motion. Ten feet. Twenty. He turned and ran.

"You dumb cunt!" Shawn hollered as he disappeared into the brush. "I'll get you. I'll be back."

Heather leaned against the door frame, the butt of the shotgun drooping. Tears ran down her face; she shivered, collapsed. Jason made it to her and held her until she quieted.

* * *

Two hours later Jason's bruised ribs were feeling better. He sat in the cabin doorway with the shotgun, keeping watch for Shawn while Heather cooked another breakfast. Jason was nervous. He couldn't see or hear Shawn, but he felt Shawn's eyes on him.

"Heather?" Jason asked. She was frying a steak, smoke disappearing in the tree tops. "When are you going to tell me what's going on?"

She kept her back to him as she talked. Jason had to strain to hear her.

"Two years ago when I graduated from college," Heather began, "I got a job in a small town in Oregon teaching kindergarten. I didn't know anyone, and I was lonely. There were only two places to go—a rundown bar and the Rod and Gun Club, where it seemed like everyone in town was a member. I've always enjoyed camping; so I joined." Heather cooked as she talked, as if she were trying to ignore her own story. "Shawn's the leader of a survivalist group. You know, after the bomb drops, live off the land, kill to protect what's yours. He asked me for a date the first time we met at the club. He acted so gentle and shy, I agreed. After that first date it was like I'd turned invisible to the rest of the men in town. None of them would talk to me, let alone ask me for a date. Shawn had told everybody that I was his woman and off limits.

"A year later we were married. That's when Shawn changed. I wanted to keep on teaching. He wanted me to stay home and have babies. I was supposed to ask his permission if I wanted to do anything. I insisted that I was going to teach. That was the first time he beat me." Heather's back was rigid. She took a deep breath, then continued as if she were talking about someone else.

"The next day I ran off. Shawn dragged me back. I got another beating. I didn't teach that year. Six months later he found out that I was taking the Pill. He was furious. I ended up in the hospital with a broken arm. While I was in the hospital, I filed for divorce." Heather's inhuman calm cracked. Forgotten, the steak sizzled, starting to burn as she rushed on, reliving what happened.

"When he found out, Shawn stormed into my room. It took five men to subdue him, and he was arrested for felonious assault.

"It wasn't the first time he'd been arrested on assault charges, but this time he got a year in jail. The divorce was final two months ago, and I moved here. I thought that he would never be able to find me. I decided to camp out while I thought things over."

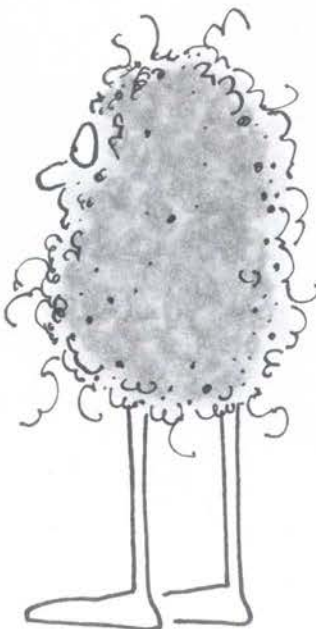

Jason jumped when a partridge exploded from the brush, its wings booming skyward. The shotgun was at his shoulder, cocked and loaded. He didn't remember raising it. Blood pounded in his ears. He sat down. Heather hadn't noticed, still lost in her own world.

"When I saw you in the lake, you were so cute, standing there naked and trying to act nonchalant while you were embarrassed. You were a stranger, and I needed to find out if I was still attractive."

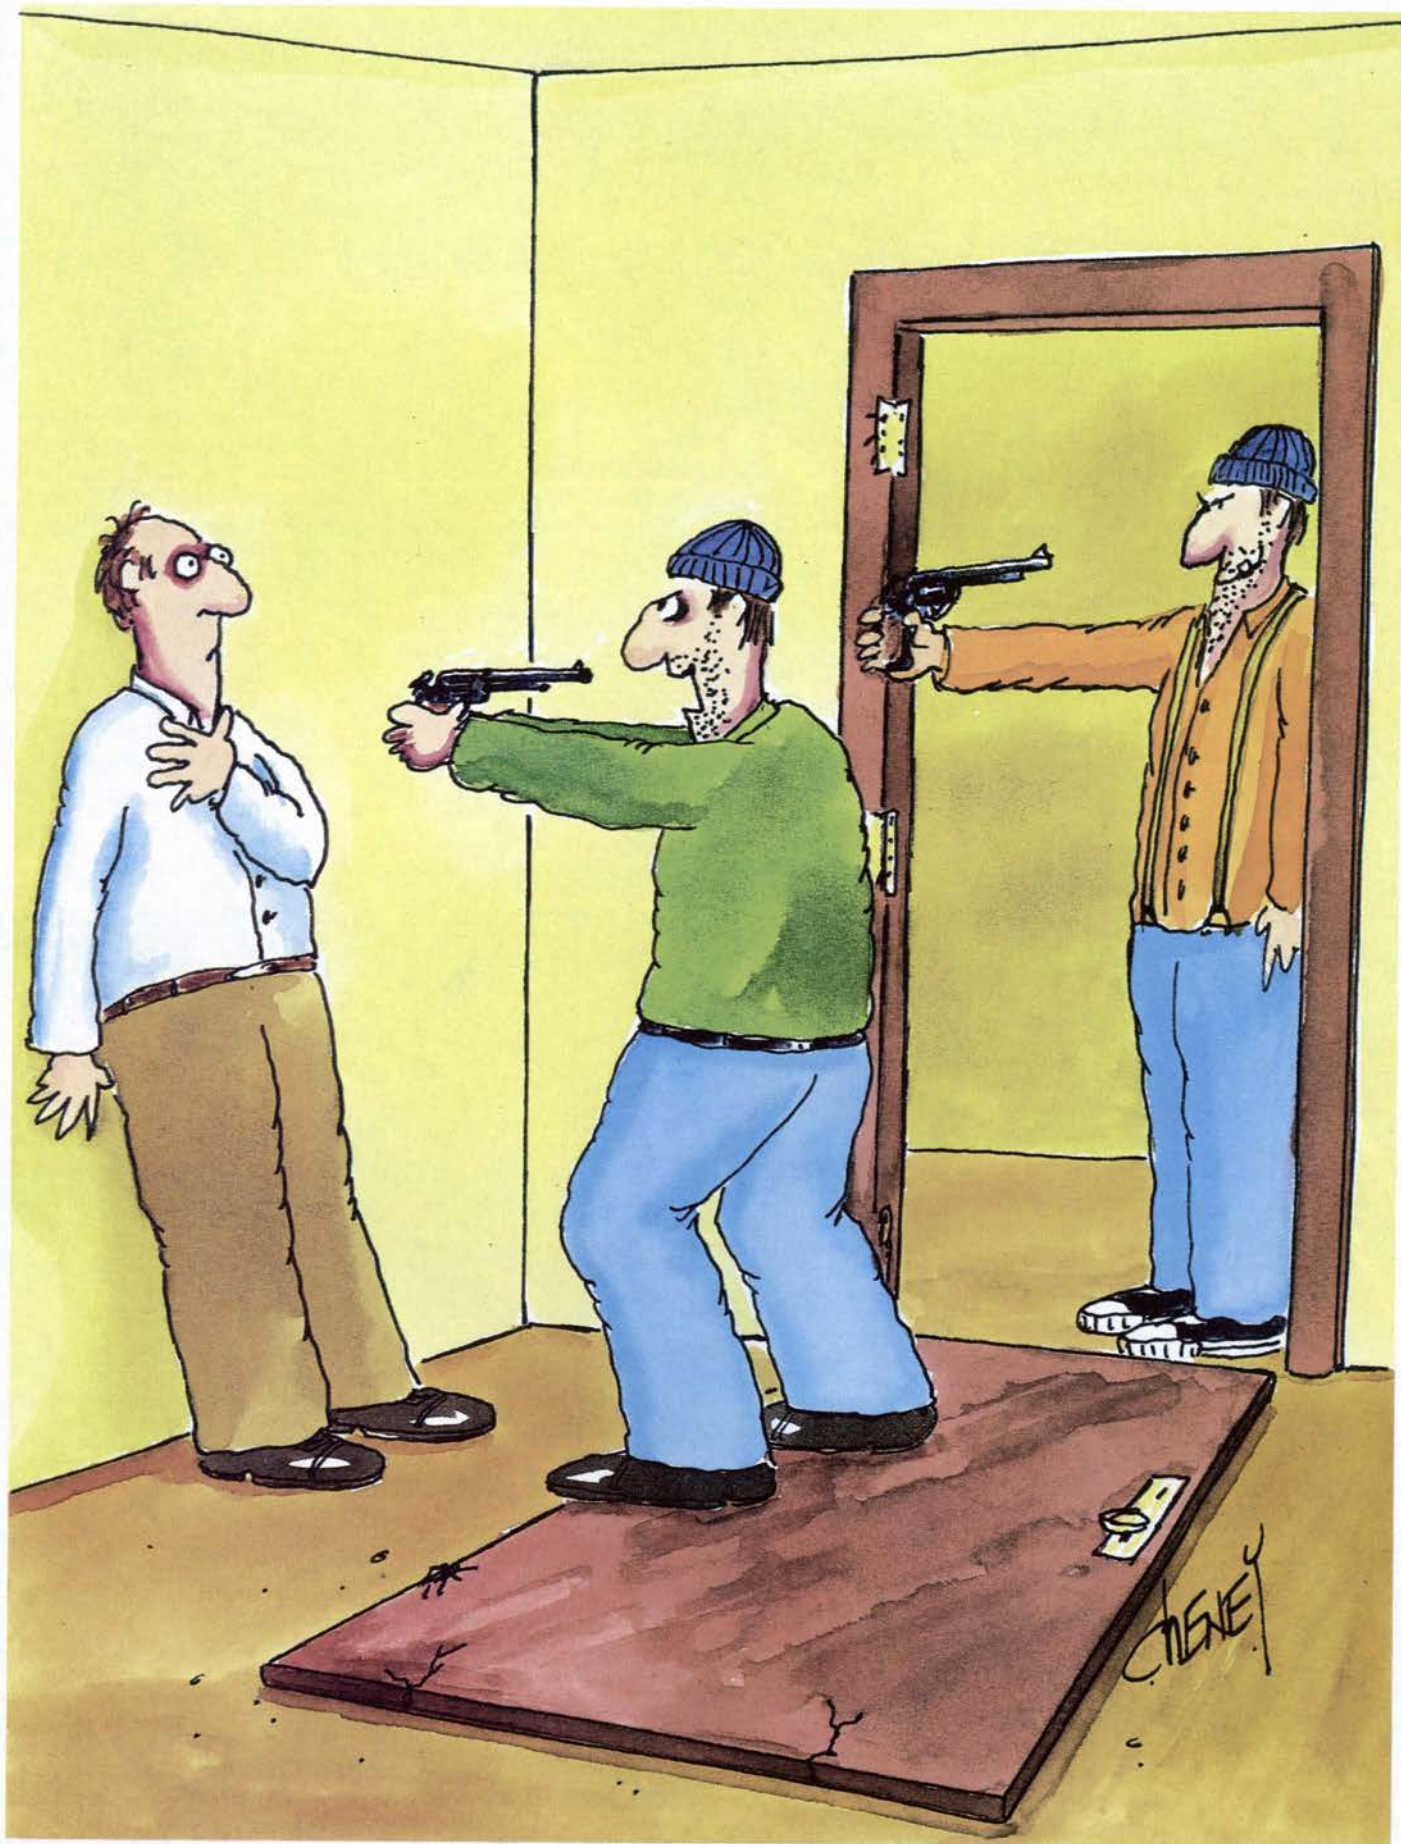

Her shoulders shook as she cried. Jason went to her, held her, whispering that everything would be all right.

THE SUPERBIKES OF '86

by Michael Levine

Imagine racing through the last quarter mile, a sleek, two-wheeled speed machine roaring between your legs with raw, animal power. Motorcycle and rider become one as you throttle past the competition, carving up the curves like a high-tech hurricane, before thrusting over the finish line at nearly 200 m.p.h. Marvelous mechanical perfection—abundant horsepower and responsive handling—amaze you as you glide by the cheering grandstands on your way to the winner's circle where a bikini-clad blonde waits with your trophy while young pit bunnies gather and gasp in admiration. Victory is yours!

Motorcycles have always been the subject of sensational, high-speed fantasies. Even before Marlon Brando and Peter Fonda romanticized the rebellious-biker lifestyle on the silver screen, beer-guzzling bands of pioneer hell-raisers in black-leather jackets and motorcycle boots were churning up the asphalt in their custom-made choppers. In fact, almost every adventurous teenage male has dreamed of racing his very own turnpike kamikaze at one point or another. But what is it about these motorized thunderbolts that makes them so attractive?

One of the most appealing aspects of motorcycles is that they offer unrestrained freedom at a very economical price. Across the nation amateur Easy Riders have hopped on these cut-rate cannonballs by the busload in search of the real America—abandoning all traditional home-bound values behind them. And why not? In light of all the pressures facing modern man, the lure of the open road is ever present—and very tempting.

But by far the most outstanding attraction motorcycles offer is their incredible sexiness! What man can forget the first time he felt 1000cc's of untamed, road-rumbling power throbbing between his thighs? Anyone who ever has mounted one of these scorching slingshots knows that nothing beats the sensation of strength and virility presented by a big roaring bike.

What woman can resist a carefree, live-fast, die-young leader of the pack cruising down the thoroughfare? As almost any roughriding Romeo will tell you, girls go wild for a guy on the back of one of these super-sonic speedsters.

Motorcycles have come a long way since the original Milwaukee Iron Horse, and no one—not even the most farsighted enthusiast revving up his experimental lawn-mower engine—could anticipate the revolutionary breakthroughs these street-eating speedsters would receive in recent years. The chrome-clad gladiators dueling on today's highways are no longer just inexpensive means of transportation. With onboard electronic management systems, state-of-the-art powerplants and aerodynamic silhouettes, the awesome cafe-style racers, high-performance power cruisers and road-hungry touring bikes blasting off production lines are faster, lighter and easier to handle than ever before!

So to keep you on the cutting edge of the ever-changing motorcycle industry, we present the cream of this year's roadway-scorching crop.

YAMAHA V-Max

No other bike illustrates the incredible brute strength of the power-cruiser class better than the now-legendary Yamaha V-Max. This eye-popping dynamo represents to motorcycles what the hopped-up, nitro-burning hot rod does to automobiles: pure mechanical muscle.

At the core of this mighty asphalt-shredder is a massive 1198cc liquid-cooled, DOHC V-4 engine capable of creating more horsepower—145 at the crankshaft—than any other production bike in history. But that's not all—with Yamaha's unique V-Boost system this dragster-on-two-wheels is like a cobra ready to strike. At 6,000 r.p.m.'s a tiny butterfly valve regulated by a computer-controlled servometer begins to open up. This simple design allows each cylinder to draw air from two down-draft carburetors—resulting in an immediate surge of power that's like nothing you've ever seen before.

When it comes to good looks, no other bike can quite compare. Girls will absolutely cream their jeans when they see you riding down the street on the V-Max's tough chrome, leather and sparkle-maroon body. The enormously fat rear tire, huge twin air scoops and aluminum disc-type wheels only enhance the feeling of raw energy.

At 560 pounds dry, this heavyweight isn't for everyone—just those who can handle the best.

Manufacturer's suggested retail price: $5,299.

KAWASAKI Ninja 1000R

The first thing you notice about Kawasaki's awesome Ninja 1000R is its remarkably futuristic styling. With a stunningly ultramodern, wind-tunnel designed full-fairing body, this sinister-looking road-rocket looks like it just exploded off the set of Star Wars! Of course, the glossy black-on-black or fiery-red coloring, neatly flush-mounted headlight and flashy stainless-steel, 4-into-2 exhaust headers don't detract from the overall visual effect.

What really sets this cycle apart from all the other racers on the highway is the 977cc liquid-cooled, 16-valve, 4-cylinder DOHC engine. This potent powerhouse packs a mean 125 horsepower, enough punch to propel both biker and bike hurtling at speeds of more than 160 m.p.h.! Kawasaki even invented a brand-new air-induction system especially for the Ninja 1000R—one that maintains a cool, high-pressure airflow to four 36mm carburetors for increased engine efficiency and rider comfort.

Handling is no less superior on this supersonic slingshot: With an all-new perimeter frame made of high-tensile steel, mild steel and aluminum, the motorcycle weighs in at only 525 pounds dry and rides like a bike half its size. Additionally, the revolutionary Uni-Trak rear-suspension system compresses shock from both ends for increased wheel travel and improved durability.

Manufacturer's suggested retail price: $5,099.

BMW K100RT

Some people call the BMW K100RT the ultimate sport touring bike—and judging from its innovative shaft-drive powerplant, Euro-tech styling and comfortable monolever suspension system, this prestigious big rig may indeed be the obvious weapon of choice.

Waiting beneath the metallic-gray body lurks a mammoth 987cc, laydown-4, liquid-cooled, fuel-injected DOHC engine ensuring a low center of gravity and providing a lightning-fast 12.95-second quarter mile at 103.15 m.p.h. While certainly no land-speed record-breaker, this 594-pound (with full tank) 4-stroke is practically trouble free, full of torque and easy to service. (You can pull out the entire crank, con rod and piston assembly without even removing the cylinder block.)

Status-seeking executives and old-time endurance riders alike will appreciate this boss Beemer's attractive appearance, from the wind-breaking, screen-mounted airfoil to the aerodynamic full-fairing. Also, unlike the previous boxer-twin models, the sidestand can be retracted by just pulling the clutch lever. Lightweight, detachable saddlebags come standard, and options galore are offered for the K100RT, including heated handgrips, security alarm, tire-inflation cartridges and a plug-in, hand-held night lamp. Like most of BMW's products, this bike is built for luxury.

Manufacturer's suggested retail price: $6,750.

HARLEY-DAVIDSON XLH 1100 Sportster

For die-hard purists the simple chrome elegance of the Harley-Davidson XLH 1100 Liberty Edition can't be excelled. As one of the oldest motorcycle manufacturers still in business, H-D has an amazing reputation of quality to live up to, and by bringing together the latest scientific technology with its traditional macho styling, this classy sportster lets no one down.

Providing the vitality of this hot little hog is a big and beefy 1101cc 4-stroke, 45-degree, V-twin engine with enough guts to shoot the quarter mile in 13.56 seconds at a blazing

YAMAHA V-Max

KAWASAKI Ninja 1000R

BMW K100RT

97.50 m.p.h. The bike's relatively light weight—494 pounds dry—combined with its low center of gravity and brawny low-end torque give it just the right specifications to crank through even the most treacherous turn.

If that's not enough, the 1100 Sportster features all the classic Harley-Davidson form that Japanese rice-burners are still trying to imitate—unsuccessfully. Abundant chrome, spoke wheels, a raked front end and a soft, tuck-and-roll saddle make this bike the true King of American Highways. In addition, on the tank and front fender these models feature a dazzling likeness of the Statue of Liberty done out in blackberry and silver and, for every one of these limited editions sold, Harley-Davidson will donate $100 to the Statue's restoration fund.

Manufacturer's suggested retail price: $5,499.

SUZUKI GSX-R750

Looking for a motorcycle so close to the industry's engineering cutting edge that it qualifies for all-around hyperbike status? Take a look at Suzuki's revolutionary GSX-R750. In a move shotgunning the manufacturer to the forefront of the sportbike free-for-all, designers installed the most progressive racing technology in this standard-production street racer. In fact, this lightweight masterpiece actually won the Le Mans 24-hour endurance race in 1985.

Experts agree that little could be done to improve the GSX-R for track use: The oil-cooled, 749cc, in-line transverse 4-stroke DOHC motor puts out, according to company specs, a cool 100 horsepower. Not only can this freeway flyer accelerate from 0 to 60 in 2.8 seconds, but it does the standing quarter mile in 11.33 seconds at a burning 114.79 m.p.h.! Combine this kind of get-up-and-go with a double-downtube all-aluminum frame—making the entire machine weigh only 388 pounds dry—and you've got yourself a definite winner.

Suzuki didn't stop with just hard-core muscle in a hot lighter-than-air package however: The GSX-R sports a Full-Floater rear suspension—with a gas-charged shock absorber and a box-section rear swing arm—to guarantee the smoothest ride possible on or off the racetrack.

Manufacturer's suggested retail price: $4,299.

HONDA 500 Interceptor

Don't let the Honda 500 Interceptor's small size fool you. This pavement-grinder still performs like one of the best mid-size street-fighters around. Created with the average boulevard speed-freak in mind, the hardy 498cc, liquid-cooled DOHC engine conveys an adequate 68 horsepower to a close-ratio 6-speed transmission, and the V-4 cylinder configuration places the powerplant low and forward in a race-designed rectangular-section frame for improved stability.

Handling is superb as a result of Honda's patented Pro-Link arrangement with its three-position rebound damping and air-adjustable front forks for precise suspension tuning. In addition to the usual top-of-the-line braking system, this red-white-and-blue crotch vibrator carries the easily adjustable Torque Reactive Anti-Dive Control (TRAC) design reducing fork compression in those tight turns.

While certainly not challenging the bigger, more powerful racing-style monsters, this 412.3 pound lightweight still has the look, feel—and force—to impress your most highbrow honey.

Shawn stood over her, holding her legs apart as if she were a giant wishbone.

sunset; the wind strengthened, trees creaking. Waves slapped the wharf.

Hot and sticky, Jason kept guard past midnight, pacing nervously from window to window inside the dark cabin. Heather tossed in bed as she tried to sleep.

Wind lashed at the ring of fires Jason had built around the cabin so that Shawn couldn't attack unseen. The dim light of the flames flickered on the walls.

As Jason spent the afternoon collecting wood, several times he had felt Shawn nearby, as if he were an evil ghost.

"Jason?" Heather's voice sounded tired and worried. "I haven't thanked you for what you did today."

"You don't have to," Jason said as he looked out a window. Dark shadows danced like demons beneath the trees. In an hour he'd have to add more wood to the fires.

"Yes, I do." Jason heard the bed creak as Heather stood and crossed the floor to him. "You risked your life trying to stop him." She kissed his cheek. A quick, shy kiss of thanks.

Jason slipped his arm around Heather. The heat of her body was comforting.

Her hair smelled of wood smoke.

"We're even. You saved mine. Now back to bed." Jason patted her on the ass. There was a distant rumble of thunder.

"Aren't you tired?" Heather asked. Her hand glided over his chest, playing with the shirt buttons. "I can keep watch while you sleep."

Jason yawned again. "I'll be okay."

"You sure?" She looked up at his face. He looked exhausted. "I know something that will keep you awake." Heather knelt in front of Jason. In one quick motion she had his fly open and cock out. Before he had a chance to get hard, his dick was engulfed by the moist warmth of her mouth. Her tongue swirled around the head while she squeezed his balls. Jason hardened, thickening, filling her mouth. The harder he got, the more it looked like his cock was growing from her mouth. His increasing length hit the back of her throat at the end of each stroke.

As his orgasm built, the storm started pouring down in a solid sheet. The fires hissed, then went out. Lightning struck nearby like a snake's tongue lapping the earth. The crash of thunder shook the cabin as Jason came. His hips shook. An electric current surged through him. He grabbed Heather's head with his free hand and jammed his cock as far down her throat as he could. She swallowed as Jason pumped streams of hot cum.

A strobe of bright, cold light filled the cabin for a second. Out of the corner of his eye Jason thought he saw a giant, dripping form. He'd started to bring the shotgun up when pain exploded against his head. Then nothing.

* * *

Sun streamed through the window when Jason came to. The cabin was a shambles. Everything had been methodically destroyed.

"Heather!" Jason's voice was a hoarse whisper. Blinding streaks of pain lanced through his skull when he tried to stand. His head felt like it had been hit with a lead pipe. Jason winced when he touched it. His hand came away bloody.

The pain subsided to a dull throb as he searched the cabin for Heather. Outside, mist rose from the wet ground. In the mud at the edge of the clearing were two sets of footprints, one large, one small.

That fucking son of a bitch took her, Jason raged inwardly. Now he welcomed the pain from his head wound. It fed his determination to hunt down Shawn. Each passing moment fueled Jason's anger. Back in the cabin he hunted for a weapon. His shotgun gone, along with his hunting knife and ax, he settled for a piece of wood with the heft and length of a baseball bat.

Rain-softened ground made their trail easy to follow. Pushing hard, Jason caught up with them that afternoon. He watched from bushes as they forded a rain-swollen stream, the roar of water drowning out all sound.

Shawn led Heather, hands tied behind her back, with a rope leash around her neck. They were midstream, surging water as high as Heather's breasts. She slipped and disappeared under the roil.

Jason shouted, the sound lost in the stream's roar. Shawn pulled on the rope leash like a man trying to land a fish. Gasping, Heather popped to the surface. Shawn grabbed her hair and towed her to the river bank. After a brief rest they disappeared into the bushes.

Jason followed, staying back, catching only brief glimpses of Shawn and Heather as they topped a ridge or crossed a field. Several times Shawn stopped, looking at his back trail like a bear trying to catch an enemy's scent. Heather stumbled more as the shadows lengthened.

An hour from sunset Heather collapsed for the last time. Nothing Shawn did kept her on her feet. Disgusted, he tied the rope leash to a tree and made camp. Jason crawled as close as possible to wait until Shawn fell asleep.

Shawn fed himself, then swaggered over to where he'd tied his wife.

"You'll learn to do what I say," he told Heather. He casually backhanded her face. The sharp crack sounded like a rifle shot. Heather bit back a cry of pain. "Or you'll get more of that."

Without warning, Shawn grabbed Heather's T-shirt and ripped it from her body. His eyes gleamed with lust as he dropped the rent fabric. Heather jerked from the force of it, her unfettered breasts bouncing.

Shawn grabbed a breast in each hand and squeezed like he was milking a cow. He laughed when she screamed, but Jason had to force himself to remain still.

"You'll do what I say or that will feel like a gentle love squeeze." Shawn released her breasts. Heather struggled as he unzipped her jeans and peeled them off. Shawn unbuckled his belt and dropped his pants.

"You goddamn son of a bitch!" Heather cried. Laughing, Shawn slapped her swaying breasts as if they were punching bags. She spit at him when he grabbed his cock and masturbated until he was hard.

Shrieking like a crazy woman, Heather lunged forward. She kicked. Shawn easily caught her leg and dumped her on her back. He grabbed her other foot and stood over her, holding her legs apart as if she were a giant wishbone.

Jason charged through the woods like a wounded bear. A red mist that blanketed his brain clouded his vision. Shawn had just started to turn when Jason swung the stick as hard as he could. It whistled through the air as it traveled the path of a golf club. Down and then up, catching Shawn in the balls.

Shawn rose on his toes like a ballerina as he screamed and collapsed at Jason's feet. He fainted from the pain.

* * *

The next morning hazy sunshine filtered down between the trees. Swarming mosquitoes in the still air bit any exposed flesh.

Jason, with Shawn tied like Heather had been and hobbled to keep from running, led his charge. Shawn fought every step of the way. His eyes burned with hate as he cursed, promising to hunt them down and kill them.

When they reached the stream at noon, the water level had dropped six inches, but it still crashed against the rocks. They had to shout to hear each other. Jason led Shawn into the welcome cold of the rushing waters, and Heather followed with the rifle. They were almost across when Shawn slipped and disappeared under the water.

The rope snapped tight, jerking Jason into deeper water. Shawn surfaced for a second before the water sucked him under again. It felt like his arms were being jerked out of their sockets as Jason hauled Shawn in. Shawn surfaced. Jason reached for him and saw Shawn's eyes full of hate. Shawn's threat to kill echoed through Jason's mind. The rope slipped out of his hands, and Shawn vanished beneath the surging water.

They found Shawn's body two miles downstream, caught in the waterlogged branches of a downed tree. Jason swam out to the body and cut the rope off him, leaving signs of only a simple drowning.

* * *

Ten days later twin wakes followed the plane as it taxied to the wharf under an overcast sky. The pilot spat a stream of tobacco into the water as Jason loaded his gear in the back of the plane. "Looks like you're in a hurry to leave," he said.

"Two weeks in the woods will do that to a man," Jason said.

The pilot laughed. "Two weeks without any pussy, you mean."

Jason grinned as he thought about Heather, who would be in Portland by now, waiting for him. If he hurried, he could be with her before dark. "Let's go," he told the pilot.

ENLARGE YOUR PENIS TO IT'S MAXIMUM! HAVE ERECT MEASUREMENTS OF 9, 10 EVEN 12 FULL INCHES!

The MACRO-TEN is the ONLY PENIS
DEVELOPER you will ever need!

Is the size of your penis bringing you down? Sure, the medical authorities say the size doesn't count; but as long as women have a need to be filled, they will demand the full measure of devotion. And no amount of psychological reassurance will fill the gap between expectation and reality.

Now, with a simple device you can follow in the footsteps of thousands of men who have proven that there is a way to INCREASE PENIS SIZE and THICKNESS! The device is called the MACRO-TEN ELECTRIC VACUUM ENLARGER. A safe and proven natural way to add inches to penis length and thickness. With the MACRO-TEN, you will see yourself grow to dimensions you never thought possible.

HOW CAN THE MACRO-TEN ELECTRIC VACUUM ENLARGER INCREASE PENIS LENGTH & THICKNESS?

Your erection is caused by blood flowing into hollow caverns inside your penis. The caverns fill with blood and your penis grows in size and thickness and becomes stiffer and stiffer until the caverns are filled with all the blood they can hold. BUT, IF YOU INCREASE THE CAPACITY OF THE CAVERNS BY MAKING THEM BIGGER, THEY HOLD MORE BLOOD and you have a correspondingly longer, thicker penis. Regular use of the MACRO-TEN gently urges the caverns to expand ... expand ... expand. You'll see the astonishing results the first time you use your MACRO-TEN. Your penis will grow inside the clear, picture window sleeve. Immediately you'll see just how really BIG ... how really FAT ... how LONG ... how HARD and STIFF your own penis can get! And after regular sessions with the MACRO-TEN you'll probably find as do most men that these size gains don't go away! They become a part of you to thrill and excite her!

THE MACRO-TEN IS SIMPLY THE MOST POWERFUL ENLARGEMENT SYSTEM YOU CAN PURCHASE ANYWHERE! AT ANY PRICE!

This powerful, totally electric unit (U.L. approved) is equipped to plug into any wall outlet to give you continuous, even sucking power until you shut it off! Unlike noisy electric vacuum enlargers costing upwards of $100 — the MACRO-TEN is "quite as a whisper." This sophisticated instrument is by far the state of the art in penis enhancing machinery. It has taken time, money and first-class engineering to produce what many have called the "Rolls Royce" of vacuum enlargers. The MACRO-TEN is a finely crafted precision instrument designed to create the vacuum needed to make the male organ LONG and THICKER. If you are truly serious about penis enlargement — the MACRO-TEN will do the job for you!

HUSTLER

Special Anniversary July Edition on Sale May 20, 1986

A HONEY OF AN ISSUE

HUSTLER's gala 12th Anniversary special collector's issue has more of what HUSTLER is known for, starting with a half-dozen honeys. Our covergirl and centerfold shows why she's a front-runner among nude dancers. An old-fashioned gal shares her Gay Nineties fantasy, and a pair of gay gals share each other. Then a turned-on smokey cops a feel of our highway honey. Our special anniversary treat is a Beaver Hunt winner from Indianapolis.

SIN CITIES, USA

Where do adult Americans party? Our expert tells you about the adult-entertainment zones in 11 major U.S. cities—the wheres and where-nots, how-to and how much. If you like a little grown-up fun when you travel, you won't want to leave home without Sin Cities, USA: HUSTLER's Guide to Adult Entertainment.

DARK BROTHERS DEVILMENT

What makes a Dark Brothers film so hot that Walter and Greg have become living legends in porn? Entertainment Editor Doug Oliver probed behind the scenes at filming of The Devil in Miss Jones, the pernicious pair's arousing remake of the Damiano classic. Oliver's photo-illustrated report gets to the business at hand in Behind the Scenes With the Dark Brothers.

TELEVISION TAKEOFF

If you're bored with the limited sex scenes on the small screen, you'll love the HUSTLER Beaver Channel, premiering next month. Humorist Anthony Asermelly twists the television dial to receive the far-out signal of HBC in this illustrated parody.

PLUS MUCH MORE OF EVERYTHING

To celebrate HUSTLER's dirty dozen years of publishing, we've expanded your favorite regular sections so you'll get more of Hot Letters, Bits and Pieces, Beaver Hunt, HUSTLER Erotic Entertainment, Feedback and a few surprises. Don't miss the party with the July '86 HUSTLER special 12th Anniversary issue.
